Red China Blocking Contacts

LONDON (AP) — Red Chinese authorities have begun blocking contacts between their citizens and foreigners, according to diplomatic reports reaching Western capitals.

Qualified informants said Friday surveillance has been increased considerably over all foreigners in the country — diplomats and private visitors alike — since early June.

At the same time Chinese citizens who work for, or retain contact with, Russians, Western, Asian or African missions are being regularly shadowed.

Hong Kong Chinese who wanted to visit relatives on the mainland have received letters from their kinsmen asking them to wait until later in the year.

REVISIONIST HUNT

Specialists on Chinese affairs here consider this new development could be part of the cultural revolution spreading through the land or might be a by-product of "counterrevolutionaries" and "revisionists" — or pre-Russians.

In the view of Western authorities, the antiparty purge has been touched off by Mao Tse-tung's failing health. Already it has led to the ouster of Peking's Mayor Peng Chen, a member of the Politburo, among others.

Among the manifestations of declining contact between Chinese and foreigners reported by diplomats in Peking:

— An increasing measure of surveillance has been imposed on foreigners visiting the Ming tombs in Peking.

— A curfew has been placed on boating and other picnics at the summer palace lake in the capital.

— Some pressure seems to be building up on Chinese nationals working in foreign diplomatic missions.

In the same general context one event that shocked some foreign diplomats in Peking was the public trial and execution

Monday of a 17-year-old Chinese, Yang Ju-ching, on charges of knifing two "friendly foreigners."

Youths Use Poison, Fire For Protests

SAIGON (UPI) — A teenage Buddhist girl set fire to herself Friday night and a young boy swallowed poison in violent protest against the military government.

The region is a known Viet Cong stronghold in Tay Ninh province 60 miles northwest of Saigon where U.S. troops have been carrying out Operation El Paso.

In Hue, government paratroopers and combat police swept the streets of rebel demonstrators and Buddhist altars and moved toward a showdown with dissident troops holed up in the northern city's ancient imperial fortress.

Moderate Buddhist leader Thich (rev.) Tam Chau condemned the rioting and violent tactics of the Buddhists' drive to topple the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. He made a blistering public denunciation that split anew the moderate and militant factions of the national Buddhist church.

The girl who doused herself in gasoline and struck a match was identified as Tuyet Dag Tri, 19. The boy who swallowed the poison was not identified.

As wailing Buddhists carried the girl to a truck ambulance in the garden of the great Vien Hoa Dao Pagoda, Buddhist monks said the girl had left two letters to President Johnson and Thich Tam Chau saying she acted to protest the military government's persecution of her faith.

In other outbreaks against the government and the U.S. Friday, Buddhist youths smashed the windshield of a U.S. military bus shuttling between Huu and the Marine base in the city's outskirts at Phu Bai.

The rock-throwing Buddhist youths, also scattered by tear gas, later smashed every windshield of a 14-truck South Vietnamese military convoy.

But Buddhist leaders in the city have gone into hiding and the government halted all commercial air traffic out of the city to prevent any antigovernment leaders from fleeing the crackdown.

Brown said officials expect the defense communications satellites to "play a most important role in transmission of traffic vital to the U.S. defense."

The satellites were lofted into orbit about 21,000 miles above the equator by an Air Force Titan 3 rocket.

The launch was praised as a success, and officials said all seven satellites are performing perfectly.

Brown said the satellites are jam resistant. But it was indicated that other nations could monitor signals relayed by the orbiting radio relay stations.

Whether these coded messages could be broken, however, is another matter.

Major John Nosser treated the girls to breakfast at a local hotel and presented them with scrolls of honorary citizenship of this old river port.

The Pilgrim Garden Club guided the group on a tour of Natchez' famous ante-bellum homes.

The girls, all June graduates of Hollins College in Roanoke, Va., began the river voyage June 9 at Paducah, Ky.

Their 16 by 40 foot raft, the Rosebud Hobson, pulled away from Natchez shortly after noon Friday.

Capt. Gordon Cooper, the riverboat captain, who operates the wood and barrel raft, said he hoped to land Friday night at Angola, La.

Capt. Cooper said the group should arrive at Baton Rouge tonight and New Orleans about noon Monday.

Trace Of Rain Recorded Here

A trace of rain was recorded by FAA at Selman Field Friday, while the Twin Cities' 90-degree reading at 2 p.m. was the hottest in the Midsouth during the day.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy with no important temperature changes through Friday. Widely scattered thunderstorms are expected today with a 30 per cent probability of rain, decreasing to 10 per cent tonight and Sunday.

Low tonight should be 62 to 68, with a high today of 84 to 90. The low Friday was 70 degrees, recorded at 5 a.m.

"In itself, it's quite innocuous enough, but we felt the creation of a list of names and addresses of the opposite sex might be put to improper use," said Dr. Thomas F. Nevins, assistant school superintendent.

The Kings County, Brooklyn, district attorney's office said it was concerned basically with whether the information might be used by sexual perverts or for other purposes.

For $3 to $6 apiece, the computer pairers promise to come up with the names — and addresses or telephone numbers — of 3 to 14, or even 100, ideal mates-dates.

"Petting is always wrong, OK for two people engaged to be married, OK for two people who have dated each other for several weeks or months, petting is OK."

Howling Viet Mob Shoots Policeman, Drags Off Another

Capital City Sees 6th Day Of Violence

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A howling mob of about 150 persons killed a Vietnamese policeman with his own gun today in the sixth day of anti-government disorders in Saigon.

A police source said the rioters then grabbed a second policeman beat him and dragged him bleeding into the compound of the Buddhist Institute. His fate was not known.

Riot troops moved in to take over the institute, the center of repeated agitation to overthrow the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, although no robed monks were seen among the rioters.

One source described the mob as "in one of the worst tempers yet."

Barricades were thrown up by demonstrators across many streets and traffic clogged some intersections.

In Hue, the northern spawning ground of the spring revolt, the government continued its crackdown on Buddhist-led dissidents with a declaration of martial law.

Government planes were reported to have strafed a rebellious column of South Vietnamese 1st Division on Friday outside the old imperial capital. The government security force in Hue swelled to 2,500 with the arrival of 500 more South Vietnamese marines. More than 500 persons, including 12 Buddhist monks, were reported arrested.

In Saigon, a three-day strike against the government called for Saturday by radical leaders failed to come off. Saigon workers frequently disregard such strike appeals.

In another move to shore up its position, Ky's government devalued the piaster, but the new rate appeared to be far short of black market prices.

Hit by a 55 per cent increase in the cost of living the past year, the government announced the new rate would be 80 piasters to the dollar, compared with 35 piasters before.

Extremist elements maintained antigovernment demonstrations in Saigon despite a published warning from Thich Tam Chau, moderate chairman of the Buddhist Institute, that "if your struggle fails, the Unified Buddhist Church will no longer exist."

Pursuing a chaotic, emotional campaign:

— A 16-year-old girl, Dao Thi Tuyet, set herself afire in the Buddhist Institute compound in an abortive attempt to emulate Buddhists who committed suicide by fire in late May and early June. Severely burned, she survived. Monks said she left a letter to President Johnson protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam and another to Chau pleading with him to line up with the extremists.

— A mob burned three American vehicles — a U.S. Embassy Jeep and two pickup trucks — near the institute in the fifth straight day of street disorders, combated by troops and riot police with clubs and tear gas.

Apparently to impede the security units, the Buddhists moved hundreds of children into the area.

— About 100 monks offered themselves for arrest in a passive resistance movement because the ruling generals ignored a recent demand from the institute that they resign.

The only North Louisiana legislator voting against the bill was Rep. Robert Munson, Rapides.

Rep. Cleveland Marcel, Terrebonne, said the increase to municipalities would assist them if paying for a firemen's pay raise, passed by the House and now pending in the Senate.

The bill had 57 co-authors, four more than the 53 votes required for final House passage.

The remaining Gemini lineup now reads like this, with all flights currently planned for three days to include rendezvous, docking and space walks:

Gemini 10, July 18 — Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins.

U.S. Picks 2 To Ride Gemini 12

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The space agency completed Friday the crew lineup for the two-man Gemini program, selecting Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. to fly the Gemini 12 mission late this year.

At the same time, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration official said he had directed a complete review of the flight plans for the three remaining Gemini launches.

DATA GLEANING

"We are going to use these three flights to maximum advantage to get all the data we can preliminary to the Apollo — man to the moon — program," said Dr. Robert C. Seamans, NASA deputy director. He spoke as he presented NASA exceptional service awards to the Gemini 9 pilots, Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan.

The Gemini program is to end in October or November, with the first manned Apollo flight in earth orbit to follow within a few weeks.

The newest developments in the fast-moving U.S. man-in-space program came as Stafford and Cernan had a news conference about their exciting, sometimes troublesome flight that ended June 6.

Seamans praised the work of Stafford and Cernan and said that although all Gemini 9 objectives were not met, the flight provided a great understanding of many previously unknown problems of space flight. Their work will ease the path of future spacemen, he said.

Cernan found himself with another assignment Friday, as backup pilot for Gemini 12. Named backup command pilot was Air Force Col. L. Gordon Cooper Jr.

Lovell, 38, will be the prime command pilot, with Aldrin, 36, flying as pilot and making his first space flight.

Aldrin will be taking his second trip into space. He and Air Force Col. Frank Borman were at the controls of Gemini 7 during its record-shattering 14-day flight last December. They also made an historic rendezvous with Gemini 7.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Lovell graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy. He served as a Navy test pilot and flight instructor for several years before he was named an astronaut in 1962. He is married to the former Marilyn Gerlach of Milwaukee, Wis. They have four children.

Aldrin, who is called "Buzz" by his fellow astronauts, is a West Point graduate and holds a doctor of science degree in aeronautics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His doctoral thesis concerned how two satellites could rendezvous in orbit.

A native of Montclair, N.J., Aldrin flew 66 combat missions in Korea and was credited with destroying two MIG15 aircraft and damaging another. He is married to the former Joan A. Archer of Ho-Ho-Kus, N.J. They have three children.

The remaining Gemini lineup now reads like this, with all flights currently planned for three days to include rendezvous, docking and space walks:

Gemini 10, July 18 — Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins.

Business Bureau Importance Cited

Editor's Note: This is the fifth and final part of a series dealing with the vital role a Better Business Bureau can play in the business affairs of a community. The series was originated at the request of a better understanding of how a BBB works and how it can help to protect all the people. A new series is being launched here to expand the Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish. A group of business leaders again are working together and frequently saves residents huge sums of money.

"We believe this (the Better Business Bureau) is the only way to expose and keep 'shady operators' on the run. . . ."

That was one of the replies received from businessmen in a mail survey conducted in 14 Southern cities by the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport and Bossier, Inc., seeking opinions on the value of establishing such a bureau in this area. The reply quoted came from Jackson, Miss., where a Better Business Bureau was established about two years ago.

R. A. "Bob" Booth, manager of the Shreveport Better Business Bureau said commercial secretarial work was employed to select names of businessmen at random from directories in the 14 cities and mail the survey cards to them. Fifty cards were mailed to each city.

The selection of names of card recipients was made, Booth said, without any knowledge of whether or not they were affiliated with the Better Business Bureau in their areas.

The reason for conducting the survey last fall, said Booth, was that "I wanted something to dramatize and make vivid to the Ouachita Parish business community the value of a Better Business Bureau. Up until then the Ouachita Parish area had only a very slight connection with Better Business Bureau in Shreveport, just telephone answering service, and that facility was not adequate to do so."

Another reply from Baton Rouge stated, "Strongly recommend Better Business Bureau for the survey as the expansion of the Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish, a division of the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport, was being carried out to provide direct telephone contact with the bureau by dialing a local toll-free number."

Survey information also will be used in the major drive for expansion of membership in the bureau in Ouachita Parish.

The cards which were sent to Shreveport, Atlanta, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Lake Charles, New Orleans, Richmond, Miami, Jackson, Knoxville, Nashville, Baton Rouge, Mobile, and Memphis, stated: "Your city has a Better Business Bureau, but Monroe, Louisiana does not. Please assist Monroe businessmen in making a decision by answering this card."

The following questions which could be checked "yes" or "no" were listed:

Have you made recent use of your Better Business Bureau? If yes, did it help? Do you regard your BBB as real good? Ordinary? No Good? Is your firm a member? If yes, how long? If no, would you want a membership?

A space on the card was left for comment. Signing of the card was optional.

This Area Included In Highway Bids

"We didn't ask these people to brag about the Better Business Bureau," said Booth, "we just asked them for an answer."

It saves businessmen thousands of dollars each year and helps promote good understanding between business and consumers. If I can help, I will be glad to do so."

Another reply from Baton Rouge stated, "Strongly recommend Better Business Bureau for nearly half a century of friendly courteous service!"

U.S. Capitol To Receive Marble Face

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans to rebuild portions of the U.S. Capitol that have been standing since shortly after the British burned the building in 1814 were approved Friday.

After years of study and planning, congressional leaders approved a major renovation project to put a new marble face on the west front of the historic building. That will cost an estimated $34 million and take four years to complete. On other recent Capitol Hill projects, preliminary estimates have turned out to be well under the actual cost.

The old sandstone front is now so cracked and weakened, they said, that a minor explosion or even an aircraft's sonic boom could cause it to crumble. Since last fall huge timbers have shored up areas where long cracks are easily visible.

The west front is the one facing downtown Washington from the top of Capitol Hill. A new marble face was put on the east front of the capitol five years ago. In Washington parlance, the Capitol has not back — only a west front and an east front.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, and Capitol architect George W. Stewart granted approval Friday for what will be the biggest rebuilding job on the Capitol since the present House and Senate wings were added 100 years ago.

They are members of special commission authorized to approve Capitol construction projects. Other members are Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who were not at Friday's meeting.

Since the project was first mentioned years ago fears have been expressed that the renovation would alter the familiar lines of the Capitol, but Stewart said its present configuration will be preserved.

The plan approved, one of three presented by a panel of architects, calls for completely removing the sandstone face of the central part of the west front and replacing it in marble on a new line moved outward from the present one.

The new outer wall will be extended from 44 to 88 feet beyond the old one, adding about 4.5 acres of new floor space to the Capitol. It is earmarked for offices, a terrace restaurant and cafeteria and an underground service area for receiving deliveries.

The portion to be replaced is the last of the original exterior of the building. It was begun after the British burned the Capitol, and completed in 1826.

Stewart said a major cause of its deterioration is that ground-up oyster shells used as a source of lime in the mortar

Cuba, Viet Nam Have Common Interest

By GEN. THOMAS A. LANE

WASHINGTON — There is mode of thought which argues, "What are we doing way out there in Viet Nam when we have not even taken care of the Cuban problem right on our doorstep?" This attitude is often adopted by citizens who are intensely concerned about Cuba. For them, the argument is self-defeating.

The reality today is not that Cuban Communism has conquered Cuba but that Soviet Imperialism has conquered Cuba. Castro is a Soviet puppet imposed on the Cuban people by Soviet forces which hold the Cuban Army in leash. Continued Soviet occupation of Cuba is necessary to prevent the people from overthrowing Castro.

Friends of Cuba should today be focussing public attention on the Soviet presence in Cuba. They should destroy the fiction of Castro as the leader of the Cuban people and show him in his true light as a coward using mercenaries for protection from his own people.

Friends of Cuba should stimulate the OAS to launch an inquiry into the foreign presence in Cuba. Such an inquiry would create pressures for Soviet withdrawal. It might also stimulate the U.S. Government to attend to its responsibility for keeping the Soviet Union out of this hemisphere.

The American people have been led to accept Castro as a Cuban phenomenon. When they realize Because Cuba is under communist control, this country poses a more difficult challenge. Liberation must be achieved by Cubans with the assistance of the United States. But instead of helping Cuban patriots, the United States has been hindering them.

Castro's chief enemy is the Cuban people — not those in exile, but those living in Cuba. This is the inevitable consequence of his tyranny.

The chief power of the Cuban people lies in their Army. As in Algeria, this is the instrument that could challenge the Castro regime and liberate the country.

But today, the Cuban Army is restrained by the Soviet forces in Cuba. A Cuban exile who closely folwere not properly fired and the mortar has crumbled away.

Friday's action authorized the architects to prepare final plans. Stewart said it will be 18 months before the work of tearing down the old wall begins because temporary buildings will have to be erected to replace the offices in the construction area.

that only the Soviet power sustains Castro against his own people, Americans will be roused to action.

Business Bureau Importance Cited

Editor's Note: This is the fifth and last in a series of articles dealing with the vital role a Better Business Bureau can play in the business community of a community. The stories are aimed at giving everyone a better understanding of how a BBB works and how it can help to protect all the people. The drive is being launched here to expand the Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish. A strong BBB is good defense against various rackets and frequently saves residents huge sums of money.

"We believe this (the Better Business Bureau) is the only way to expose and keep 'shady operators' on the run..."

That was one of the replies received from businessmen in a mail survey conducted in 14 Southern cities by the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport and Bossier, Inc., seeking opinions on the value of establishing such a bureau in this area. The reply quoted came from Jackson, Miss., where a Better Business Bureau was established two years ago.

R. A. "Bob" Booth, manager of the Shreveport Better Business Bureau said a commercial secretarial agency was employed to select names of businessmen at random from directories in the 14 cities and mail the survey cards to them. Fifty cards were mailed to each city.

The selection of names of card recipients was made, Booth said, without any knowledge of whether or not they were affiliated with the Better Business Bureau in their areas.

The reason for conducting the survey last fall, said Booth, was that "I wanted something to dramatize and make vivid to the Ouachita Parish business community the value of a Better Business Bureau. Up until then the Ouachita Parish area had only a very slight connection with Better Business Bureau in Shreveport, just a telephone answering service, and that facility was not adequate..."

Booth discussed the results of the survey as the expansion of the Better Business Bureau of Ouachita Parish, a division of the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport, was being carried out to provide direct telephone contact with the bureau by dialing a local toll-free number.

Survey information also will be used in the major drive for expansion of membership in the bureau in Ouachita Parish.

The cards which were sent to Shreveport, Atlanta, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Lake Charles, New Orleans, Richmond, Miami, Jackson, Knoxville, Nashville, Baton Rouge, Mobile, and Memphis, stated: "Your city has a Better Business Bureau, but Monroe, Louisiana does not. Please assist Monroe businessmen in making a decision by answering this card."

The following questions which could be checked "yes" or "no" were listed:

Have you made recent use of your Better Business Bureau? If yes, did it help? Do you regard your BBB as real good? Ordinary? No Good? Is your firm a member? If yes, how long? If no, would you want a membership?

A space on the card was left for comment. Signing of the card was optional.

Northeast Louisiana projects totaling more than $300,000 were included in Louisiana Highway Department bids let this week, according to James W. Moore, vice chairman of the Louisiana Highway Board.

"If I had gotten back 10 per cent, I would have been happy," Booth commented. "In the 208 replies, 178 rated the Better Business Bureau as good, 27 rated it as ordinary, and three rated the bureau as no good."

"In Shreveport, for instance," he said, "20 of the 50 cards were returned. They came to an address in Monroe. One reply recommended very highly the establishment of a Better Business Bureau in this area, but added this admonition, "Don't you dare try to hire our manager."

"I helped organize the Better Business Bureau in Baton Rouge and was elected its first president," said a reply from Lee Herzberg Jr., president of Herbert S. Benjamin Associates, Inc., advertising agency in Baton Rouge. "Any city the size of Monroe ought to have a Better Business Bureau. It saves businessmen thousands of dollars each year and helps promote good understanding between business and consumers. If I can help, I will be glad to do so."

Another reply from Baton Rouge stated, "Strongly recommend Better Business Bureau for any automotive community. We have found its existence an excellent moderating influence in advertising as well as in other related practices that might cause problems — good customer relations aid, plus, plus, plus..."

Said another from Baton Rouge, "BBB — Oui, Oui, Oui!"

An example of the volume of a bureau's work in helping spot improper business practices and promote better business-customer relations, is indicated in the 1964 report of activities of the Better Business Bureau of Shreveport. During that year 14,855 instances of service were rendered.

An "instance of service," in BBB terms, arises whenever a business or individual requests information or assistance in connection with a grievance that arises out of a business transaction, advertisement or other business practices.

The filing deadline for candidates is Wednesday.

William S. Walker is committee chairman and announced that the filing fee is $1.

This attitude is often adopted by citizens who are intensely concerned about Cuba. For them, the argument is self-defeating.

The essential relationship between Cuba and South Viet Nam is one of principle — not of distance. Cuba has been lost to communism, and South Viet Nam is now being lost. They are both victims of the American search for detente with the Soviet Union.

Who could believe that an American Government which accepted defeat in South Viet Nam would do anything about freeing Cuba? Only a government having the will to win in South Viet Nam could support Cuban liberation. Friends of Cuba should be leading the cry for victory in Viet Nam.

It would take so little to win in Viet Nam; Americans must concentrate on changing our course there. President Johnson could end the war with a decisive victory in six months, if only he dared.

Because Cuba is under communist control, this country poses a more difficult problem. Liberation must be achieved by Cubans with the assistance of the United States. But instead of helping Cuban patriots, the United States has been hindering them.

Man Tells Of Klan Shooting Elderly Negro Near Natchez

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI) — A man who said he couldn't live with his conscience told authorities Friday that he watched two Ku Klux Klansmen shoot an aged Negro to death on a lonely road last week.

James L. Jones, 56, said the victim, 65-year-old Ben Chester White, screamed "Oh, Lord, what have I done to deserve this?" before the Klansmen riddled him with bullets.

Jones, Claude Fuller, 46, and Ernest Avants, 35, were charged with White's murder. Jones turned state's evidence Friday in preliminary hearings for his two companions.

Both Avant and Fuller were identified earlier this year as Ku Klux Klansmen by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Jones testified that he drove Fuller, Avants and the Negro to the bridge over Pretty Creek last Friday where, he said Fuller ordered White out of the car and shot him repeatedly with a rifle. Then, Jones testified, Avants stepped up and loosed a shotgun blast that "tore off the top of the Negro's head, scattering parts of it all over my new car."

Jones said he knew of no reason for killing White. Sheriff Odell Anders said authorities also had been unable to determine a motive for the slaying.

All three men were ordered held without bond for the November grand jury. Jones, who said he confessed to Sheriff Anders Monday, had been held all week in the Hinds County Jail in Jackson.

Jones, under questioning by District Attorney L. L. Forman, said he worked with Avants and Fuller at a paper mill here. But he said he met Avants for the first time last Friday at Fuller's house. He said, "We went and got some beer and then Fuller and Avants wanted to go to White's house. They said they wanted to get him to help them find a missing dog."

"But I couldn't live with my conscience," Jones testified, and finally confessed.

The hearings before County Court Judge Robert Bonds were to determine whether there was sufficient evidence to hold the men for grand jury action.

Anders said a week's investigation had been unable to establish a motive for the killing. White was not involved in civil rights activities, he said, and "wasn't even a registered voter."

Patch-Eyed Man

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The United States National Bank in downtown Omaha was held up Friday by a man wearing a patch over one eye, but he was caught by a bank guard before he could get out of the building.

Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the Omaha field office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said bank employees told him a preliminary check showed about $3,400 was taken.

The holdup man's getaway was thwarted when a woman bank teller, noticing something peculiar at the window next to hers, motioned to the bank guard, 62-year-old Harold Hodden, a retired fire captain.

Hodden pinned the man, about 50, as he approached the door and hustled him into a bank vault to await the FBI.

REP. JOHN SCHWEGMANN, of Jefferson Parish, lost Friday in attempts to override a bill requiring liquor to be sold in areas separate from other goods. However, the bill was amended to exclude his parish and almost 20 others. (AP Wirephoto)

Opposition To Adcock Move Noted

Monroe School Board President W. S. Gannaway Friday voiced opposition to a constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Jamar Adcock to freeze city limits for city school tax-isolation that would prohibit the collection of taxes for the operation of the Monroe city schools in any area that is now in the City of Monroe, or might come into the city in the future.

"We are opposed to any legislation which would prohibit the inclusion of any areas that might come into the Monroe corporate school system in the future. If this intent is to be carried out to the fullest and all people within the city now and in the future are to be offered

Adcock introduced the amendment — two weeks after the closing of bill introductions — in the wake of statement issued by Mrs. Marie Snellings, chairman of the Ouachita Parish School Board's legislative committee, which called Adcock "undependable" for not introducing such legislation.

Adcock was left in the measure.

Rep. Joe Cooper, DeSoto, made a strong appeal against liquor, but several legislators observed his talk had little to do with the bill itself.

Rep. Jesse McLain, St. Tammany, said the move would cut down on liquor sales, but criticized lawmakers who pulled their parishes out. "I am surprised to you all," he said. "You aren't representing the people back home."

McLain, a House floor leader, said he knew many women who purchase liquor in supermarkets "that wouldn't be caught in a liquor store." Nothing that the state might stand to lose some revenues from the bill, McLain said revenues "will increase back home in insurance savings." He referred to the accessibility of liquor to minors.

Some half-dozen representatives said the bill was not constitutional with some parishes amended out.

Anders said a week's investigation had been unable to establish a motive for the killing. White was not involved in civil rights activities, he said, and "wasn't even a registered voter."

Fuller, he testified, sat beside him in the front seat.

Fuller told him to drive to Pretty Creek Bridge, Jones said, and when they arrived told him to stop.

"Fuller ordered White to get out of the car, but he protested," Jones said. When the Negro saw the rifle Fuller was holding, he screamed "Oh, Lord, what have I done to deserve this?"

Fuller then began shooting, Jones testified, and "it sounded like a machine gun." A coroner's report had shown White was shot 17 times with the rifle, and once with the shotgun.

Avants' attorney, Joe Zucarro, insisted that Avants should be freed of the murder charge because White was already dead from the rifle shots when Avants allegedly shot him.

"You can't kill a dead man," Zucarro pointed out.

But a pathologist, Dr. Leo Scanlon, said the rifle shots "probably caused the death but I could not say for sure."

Jones said that after the shooting was over, he helped the men roll White's body into the creek. It was found there Sunday by White's relatives.

Opposition To Adcock Move Noted

Monroe School Board President W. S. Gannaway Friday voiced opposition to a constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Jamar Adcock to freeze city limits for city school taxing.

"We are opposed to any legislation which would prohibit the inclusion of any areas that might come into the Monroe corporate limits in the future in the Monroe City school system," he said.

"Likewise, we oppose any legislation that would prohibit the collection of taxes for the operation of the Monroe city schools in any area that is now in the City of Monroe, or might come into the city in the future.

Adcock introduced the amendment — two weeks after the closing of bill introductions — in the wake of statement issued by Mrs. Marie Snellings, chairman of the Ouachita Parish School Board's legislative committee, which called Adcock "undependable" for not introducing such legislation.

It will just take about $400 worth of plywood and $5 worth of nails," commented Rep.

W. K. Brown, Grant, in speaking for the bill.

Another amendment tacked on eliminates several other parishes, but Concordia and East Carroll are the only two in the Fifth District that will not come under the bill.

Rep. Joe Cooper, DeSoto, made a strong appeal against liquor, but several legislators observed his talk had little to do with the bill itself.

Rep. Jesse McLain, St. Tammany, said the move would cut down on liquor sales, but criticized lawmakers who pulled their parishes out. "I am surprised at you fellows," he said.

"You aren't representing the people back home."

Underwater Human Beings

Most people, in thinking of the possibility of undersea living for mankind, envision waterproof residences somewhat similar to those on land. Not so with Frederick Pohl, science fiction writer. He predicts men will be "rebuilt" to live under water, presumably meaning they will be designed to breath water, as a fish does, and that they will be completely at home in the water. Furthermore, he predicts this change will come soon.

Anyone whose age goes back as far as does this century has only to think back a little before he will realize that practically every startling development that has been made was envisioned ahead of time by science fiction writers. These writers were some 30 to 40 years ahead of actual development in space flying.

One big factor and one big argument of a different nature are involved in the question of undersea living for mankind. Three-fourths of the surface of the earth is covered with water and only one-fourth of it is land that rises above water. Vast sums are being spent on space development but many argue that, for far smaller sums, the full potential of the great seas of the world might be developed and man's living space on this earth might be quadrupled.

People more often refer to a "dog's life" than any other when considering an unpleasant way of living. "Living the life of Riley," on the other hand, conjures visions of the most pleasant and lavish living. But what about living a "fish's life?" Except for predatory creatures, the fish probably lives the most carefree life in the world.

If man were capable of spending his entire life undersea and if, with his superior intellect, he devised ways of making himself completely safe from predatory creatures, just think what a pleasant life he might spend.

Some of the things we think of that he might not have much need for, if selected the best undersea locations, are air-conditioners, heating systems and refrigerators. Under the seas, the climate is far more uniform and it might be possible to select locations in which the temperature would be exactly right. Then there would be

Short Taste Of Prison

What may be the best method ever devised for turning first offenders away from paths of crime is being tried in New Mexico. Apparently, the results are among the most satisfactory ever discovered in criminal procedure. First offenders convicted of crimes are being sentenced to serve normal terms for their offenses but all except 30 days of the time to be spent in prison is suspended.

The system is described as "a swift dose of bitter medicine." District Judge Frank Zinn of Santa Fe is credited with developing the system — a short, terrible taste of prison life.

Nearly four years ago, Judge Zinn sentenced a man to a one to 10-year term. He suspended all except 29 days, which the man was ordered to spend in the penitentiary.

Since April 1, 1962, Prison Warden Harold Cox has received 124 persons ordered to serve short terms ranging from 30 days to six months, with the remainder of their sentences suspended. Of this group, only 12 — less than 10 per cent — have returned to the prison. This is believed to be a record never before achieved under any system of granting leniency to first offenders.

Cox believes the 30-day term is most effective and naturally, he says, the program works more effectively on certain types of persons. The prisoner must be contrite and really want to improve, Cox said. Also, a first offender who is afraid — fearful of entering prison and fearful about his future — has a better chance of being rehabilitated, the warden said.

The 30-day term gives the conno need either for sweating or shivering.

And, for a good many centuries, there should be plenty of food just for the taking. Indeed, it would be far more plentiful than was the natural game food in the United States when this country was first settled by white people.

This sounds something like an ideal lazy man's life. There would be no need to work except to chase down what food was needed. And there might be all sorts of underwater sports for entertainment. There is no doubt that underwater music and picture systems could be developed and that learning would be easy for those who wanted it, though such an easy life might be more conducive to indolence.

Since figures indicate that most of the so-called poverty funds are being spent on those who don't need them, maybe the government could ease the poverty situation by fitting people for lives in which there would be no necessity for work.

If you think this discussion is a fantastic dream, read one paragraph of what Sylvia Porter, economics writer, had to say about the rapidity of development and change in the human race, particularly in the United States. She said:

"We are now deeply involved in the development of supersonic passenger airplanes, of individual jet flight, body organ replacement, world weather control, underwater living — and we are hovering on the brink of historic breakthroughs in genetics."

Anyone want to be fitted with a pair of internal underwater lungs that will enable him to forsake the hardships of being a "land-lubber" and allow him to spend his entire time under water, living off the bountiful supply of underwater food and free to enjoy whatever forms of entertainment he might find? Well, some people are likely to be doing that before long.

And, Miss Porter said, such men as Pohl and others who addressed a meeting of the American Management Association were not talking about the next century. They were talking about what might happen within the next 10 years.

Cabinet Changes Rumored

Freeman Again Is Reported As Being Edged Out

T H E ADMINISTRATION grapevine is buzzing with a flurry of curious reports about two cabinet members.

In one of these inside accounts, President Johnson is portraying as trying to get rid of Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman by unloading him on the Association of American Railroads.

The other story has Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler bent on quitting after Congress adjourns in the fall.

These are the first backstage hints of possible Cabinet changes in some time. But there are enough circumstantial grounds to give these two reports quite a bit of credence.

Freeman has been under heavy fire in major farm areas,

He has been bitterly assailed on a number of counts, foremost among them that he has sought to have agriculture carry an undue share of the anti-inflation burden. Midwestern Democratic congressmen, facing tough, reelection contests, make no secret they consider the onetime Minnesota governor a political liability.

Fowler has been displaying increasing uneasiness with his job of trying to juggle the President's "consensus" fiscal and anti-inflation policies. It has long been evident that the White House and not Fowler is calling the tune on these matters.

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING — According to the grapevine, the details of these two intriguing reports are as follows:

In a talk with an influential board member of the Association of American Railroads, the President reportedly remarked, "I see where Dan Loomis is retiring as head of the AAR. As a suggestion, you people might consider Orville Freeman as his successor. He's a very good man. I can recommend him highly."

Two members of the AAR board have close White House ties — Ben Heineman, dynamic President of the Chicago & Northwestern, and Stuart Saunders, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Heineman has several far-reaching merger plans pending.

Mrs. Fowler is credited as wanting her husband to give up the Treasury portfolio.

To intimates she is reportedly saying, "The President telephones Joe (Fowler's nickname) at all hours of the day and night. He never has a free moment for himself. He is constantly under pressure. And if things go badly, he's bound to get the blame. I think he would be smart to get out now."

For some time, Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz has been hinting he is thinking of returning to private law practice. The one-time partner of the late Adlai Stevenson was named to the Cabinet by President Kennedy in August 1962.

POLITICALS — Senator Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., has offered to campaign in the fall for a number of liberal colleagues — among them Senators Paul Douglas, Ill.; Thomas McIntyre, N.H.; Jennings Randolph, W. Va.; Walter Mondale, Minn.; Claiborne Pell, R.I. .... Soon after Kennedy's return from his world-publicized African sojourn he will embark on a vigorous electioneering drive for Judge Samuel Silverman, reform candidate for the Democratic nomination against Judge Arthur Klein, incumbent endorsed by the regular Democratic organization. In throwing his support behind reform candidate Silverman, "Bobby" is seeking to further strengthen his position as top Democratic leader in his state. .... Senator George Murphy, R-Calif., is still a "rookie" first-timer, but that's not keeping him from having high ambitions. His aim is to succeed Senator Thruson Morton, Ky., as chairman of the influential Senate Republican Campaign Committee. Morton has to step down next year as he is up for election in 1968, and Murphy already is quietly seeking backing to succeed him.

IN A JAM — One of President Johnson's high-priority Great Society proposals is in deep trouble in Congress.

His so-called rural anti-poverty bill, approved by the Senate with little opposition in April, is encountering vigorous bipartisan resistance in the House Agriculture Committee. Democrats as well as Republicans are challenging the purpose, scope and contents of the legislation.

Johnson had a political career in California and later in Washington which made him the idol of a majority of Republicans when he ran for Vice President in 1912 on the Bull Moose ticket with Theodore Roosevelt, which divided the Republican party and made Woodrow Wilson President.

Just at present the omen for the Vice Presidency — either nomination or election — are not propitious for Kuchel. No simon pure liberal has ever been elected either President or Vice President on the Republican ticket. Nor does he appear to have, thus far, much political clout.

It's fate is uncertain. Even if it gets through the committee it's certain to be drastically revised.

The President proposed a rural anti-poverty program in a special message to Congress in late January. He maintained that farm sections lag behind urban areas in education, health services and other important facilities. As a remedy, he proposed a community development plan under which new geographical districts would be created and the government would provide funds for launching economic and social improvements in them.

Are Professors Good In Opinions On War?

DR. JOHN KENNETH Galbraith, delivering the commencement address at Rhode Island College, has called on the United States to bug out of the South Vietnamese war. His speech is interesting from several points of view.

1. There is the fact that Mr. Galbraith made it. Galbraith is generally recognized as the prime piece of floating real estate in the Kennedy Development Project. He was very close to President Kennedy and continues to be close to the heir apparent Senator Robert F. Kennedy. So that what he says concerning foreign policy, or for that matter concerning almost anything is, by the cognoscenti, considered as highly revealing of the winds that blow in Delphos. A more direct way to put it is that most listeners consider it unlikely that Prof. Galbraith should say anything, bigthinkwise, which is totally out of vibration with what Bobby Kennedy is thinking.

2. DR. GALBRAITH entered into his analysis a premise of considerable importance, theoretical and practical. He said that Dean Rusk is "terribly misinformed" if he supposes that American foreign policy is — as Rusk had reported to the Council on Foreign Relations — "widely understood, respected, and supported." Interesting theoretically is that Galbraith seems to indulge the presumption, hardly a fixture in his general thought, that it is all that important what, at any given polling period, the people think or believe. Mr. Galbraith's turn of mind is aristocratic: he tends to believe that the "best" people are those who should lead, and that therefore any discrepancy between the policies of the enlightened few and the opinions of the vulgar many is by no means either uncommon or desirable. As a practical matter, the observation is interesting because Dr. Galbraith, who as an economist is presumably skilled in the evaluation of empirical data, seems to be committing himself to the proposition that the majority of the American people desire to get out of Viet Nam rather than enforce the policy of containment. It is of great interest that he should believe this. The Kennedys are great poll-watchers, and their expertise appears to be committing itself to the notion that the people will turn against the war and against Johnson for pursuing it. The elections in the fall may prove Mr. Galbraith right. Or they may prove that, as a data-evaluator, the professors often are.

4. The net effect of Galbraith's speech, and a few others like it, is to sound the tocsin, and we shall see in the immediate next period a considerable hardening of the left-opposition to President Johnson. At the eye of the hurricane, taking advantage of the centrifugal quiet of his station, is Bobby whose way is swept clean by the ravaging winds of his associates. He must, of course, occasionally lisp into the act, and has already shown himself willing to do so, sometimes directly ("we should have a coalition government in South Viet Nam"), sometimes indirectly ("we should consider resuming diplomatic relations with Red China").

The valiant efforts of Johnson, Humphrey, Rusk, and McNamara, wielding their considerable influence, ideological, political and intellectual, have not sufficed to isolate the left protest vote in the swampland where it belongs.

Harlem Anti-Poverty Fund Misuses Shown

THE SHABBY REALITY behind the glittering propaganda of the Great Planned Society's so-called war on poverty is being exposed in the one urban poverty area which, because of its size and centrality, was to have been a model.

The anti-poverty operations in New York City's Harlem reportedly are so laced through with corruption that even the administration's fondest hopes of having the situation quiet or covered are crumbling.

An Associated Press survey of the operations shows these examples:

The anti-poverty program failed to pay some $500,000 in payroll and Social Security taxes and bills.

— Part of its millions of dollars in federal aid went to finance a Black Arts Theater which staged violently racist, anti-white dramas of the sort which, in reverse, would have called down the wrath of the administration.

— The entire program is being investigated by the district attorney.

— When the program last was audited, a little item of $800,000 was missing.

YET, THE FEDERAL government is trying to press nearly $2 million more on the Harlem poverty fighters. And, in what must be an all-time record for brass, the poverty fighters are refusing to accept unless the amount is tripled.

If the festering example of corruption in Harlem was isolated, it might not be so meaningful. Instead, it appears to be such political profits should not forever go on without some repayment or explanation to the folks who are footing the bill.

The ironic truth of this situation is that even the poor, with whom President Johnson is supposed to be so deeply concerned, are beginning to pay an ever steeper share of the bill, thanks to the money - cheapening policies of this administration.

All Americans, therefore, are owed the common courtesy of some Presidential attention to the obvious crisis that is growing in the poverty program. It would be too much to expect the most honest attention of all — an admission that poverty's cure is work, not public programs.

Soon after Kennedy's return from his world-publicized African sortie he will embark on a vigorous electioneering drive for Judge Samuel Silverman, reform candidate for the Democratic nomination against Judge Arthur Klein, incumbent endorsed by the regular Democratic organization.

One of the problems of divided leadership is the refusal of its senior United States Senator Thomas Kuchel, to join other party leaders, chiefly because they are not liberal enough for him, in backing conservative nominees for the higher party offices.

He refused to support Barry Goldwater for President in 1964 and Richard M. Nixon for Governor in 1962. If he were dealing in political strength as a major factor in his decisions, the decision against Nixon would have been inexplicable, for Nixon had carried the State over Senator John F. Kennedy in the 1960 Presidential election by 35,000 votes out of approximately 7,500,000 cast.

KUCHEL DOES not exclude Reagan, a former Democrat, from what he described as the "neo-Fascist" cult which he said was trying to take over the Republican party.

Another oddity in Kuchel's attitude is that he, until recently at least, has been the top prospect to succeed Republican Senate leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, when the latter retires. But conservatives have a pretty firm grip on the membership of their party in the Senate, and they are talking more about Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota, or Roman Hruska of Nebraska. California State Republican Chairman Gaylord Parkinson says Kuchel has not attended a single party function since he (Parkinson) became chairman.

THAT RECORD gives the conservatives, who pretty well dominate southern California, incentive to exert all their energy in Reagan's behalf, and money will not be lacking.

To real political veterans Kuchel's fight to lead California Republicans in his direction recalls the days of California's eminent Governor and U.S. Senator Hiram Johnson, who was credited with breaking the power of the railroads over the State legislature, and with leading a "progressive" movement which seems to bear much resemblance to Kuchel's general attitude.

Johnson had a political career in California and later in Washington which made him the idol of a majority of Republicans when he ran for Vice President in 1912 on the Bull Moose ticket with Theodore Roosevelt, which divided the Republican party and made Woodrow Wilson President.

Are Professors Good In Opinions On War?

fessor has gotten a little rusty.

3. MOST INTERESTING of all is Mr. Galbraith's suggestion that unless the professorial class goes along, a sustained foreign policy effort is doomed to failure. "The chance to win support of the Viet Nam policy was lost last year when the universities could not be persuaded. With time, the country has come to share the same doubts."

Now: a) it is by no means established that "the universities" are unpersuaded of the validity of our present course of action in Viet Nam. Who are unpersuaded are the professors who teach-in and get the publicity. (Example: the news dispatch reporting Galbraith's reservations was dramatically headlined, extensively narrated. The same dispatch went on to treat perfunctorily, at the tail end of the same story, commencement speeches by Vice President Humphrey and House Republican Leader Gerald Ford tending to conclusions different from Mr. Galbraith's.) It is to begin with a safish bet that the majority of the academic community stand by our commitment in Viet Nam. But even if they do not, (b), the question is eternally before us whether the academic community has, over a period of history, demonstrated its capacity to lead public opinion wisely, as when they sought for so many years to appease Stalin and now Stalin's heirs. Galbraith's assumptions are as egregiously wrong as the professors often are.

4. The net effect of Galbraith's speech, and few others like it, is to sound the tocsin, and we shall see in the immediate next period a considerable hardening of the left-opposition to President Johnson. # Hosing, Snake, Song, Flags Meets March In Greenwood

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — west of Greenwood. They were a white man doused them with a hose, children waved Confederate flags and a sound truck blared a Ku Klux Klan song as the Mississippi marchers paraded through Greenwood exhorting Negroes to register as voters Friday. A Negro youth was punched in the stomach with a nightstick.

County officials stationed eight Negro guards, unarmed, around the Confederate monument on the courthouse lawn to prevent repetition of an incident in Grenada when a march leader put an American flag in a crack of a similar monument. A white man later substituted a Confederate flag.

"They are not going to get on the monument," said A. B. Hammond, the city police commissioner.

White deputies pushed back some of the marchers onto the sidewalk. A youth said something to a deputy and was jabbed in the stomach.

Moving onto the broad steps of the old courthouse, Hosea Williams, director of voter registration and political education for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference told the crowd of 250: "If we can die in Viet Nam, we can die in Mississippi. I'm sorry I don't have but one life to give for this damnable place, Mississippi."

"We own the grass. We'll die here if necessary. Nobody's afraid. You've got to get that vote! We don't need nothing. We don't need no new legislation. Get that vote and whip that police force to h—."

Pointing to sheriff's deputies, Williams said:

"Get that vote and put black faces in that suit over there! Get that vote and pin hat badge on a black chest!"

As the marchers passed a corner gasoline station, a white man with a billy club in his hand, played a hose on the procession. A Negro teen-ager ran from the line toward the man, but he was stopped by J. V. Thomas, a plainclothes highway patrol investigator and Williams.

Williams hustled the angry teen-ager back in line, telling him: "Keep on marching, keep on marching."

Another service station attendant appeared, carrying a long billy club. He had a pistol in a hip holster. Six policemen converged on the spot and prevented trouble.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. addressed the crowd here, then went with 25 marchers by car to Winona, 29 miles to the west.

There they walked from a school to the Montgomery County Courthouse and King addressed a crowd of about 400 Negroes. Workers went into the crowd and pleaded for them to register.

"Don't be afraid, don't be afraid, you don't need to fear," they said.

About 100 responded to the appeal.

"We are going to do this all the way in," King said of the side trip, a diversion from the march route.

Two hundred marchers set out for Itta Bena, nine miles

ture say yes even when it wants to say no. The way to do this is to be voters."

Sheriff George Smith estimated King's audience at 250.

A poisonous snake was found inside a cardboard box on a truck that transports newsmen along the route of the march from Memphis, Tenn., to Jackson, Miss.

Despite Gov. Paul Johnson's announcement Thursday that the highway patrol escort would be cut from 20 men to four, there was heavy police protection for the more than 400 in the march — many of them local Negroes. Federal registrars have been on duty at the post office for several months.

The march, a continuation of the one started by James H. Meredith on June 5 — the day before he was shot — stopped five miles north of Greenwood on Thursday night. The marchers came in by truck and spent the night in two huge tents pitched in Broad Street Park here.

Aubrey James Norvell, 40, the unemployed hardware salesman from Memphis who is charged with shooting Meredith, was released from jail at Hernando, Miss., early Friday.

"The people of the mid-South had an indignation," because Norvell's $25,000 bond was not lower, said his attorney, Edward Whitten. "They started Norvell legal aid fund and sent the necessary 10 per cent cash and collateral," he said.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, came to Greenwood and addressed a voter registration rally on the broad steps of the domed Le Flore County Courthouse.

"We are here because we are tired of being beaten, tired of being murdered — we are here to say we are not afraid," he said. "We are here to carry on the spirit of the march started so courageously by James Meredith."

He referred indirectly to a speech Thursday night by Stokely Carmichael, one of the three leaders arrested and charged with trespassing when they insisted on pitching two marchers' tents on school grounds. Carmichael had roused his audience of 1,000 with shouts, "We want black power, we want black power!" He and the two others had been released on $100 bonds each.

"Do you know what power is?" King asked. "Power is the ability to make the power structure do what you want."

Romanians Open Talks With Chou

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai of Red China opened talks Friday with Romanian leaders with a four hour session at Communist party headquarters.

There was no word on what was discussed, but relations of the two countries with their common neighbor, the Soviet Union, were believed to be a major topic.

Chou praised Romania's neutral stand in the Soviet-Chinese ideological battle when he arrived Thursday for an eight-day official visit. Romania has shown increasing independence in its dealings with Moscow and has stated it would not subordinate its national identity to a centrally controlled world Communist movement.

Chou called in Deputy Foreign Minister Chao Kuan-hua, an industrial machinery exports to China.

Political talks continue today. Sunday, Chou will fly to the bustling port city of Constanta to visit Black Sea resorts. He will be accompanied by Vice Premier Emil Bodnar, an expert on East-Asian affairs.

Chou will return from the provinces Tuesday to continue his talks with Ceausescu.

Albania may be the next stop on Chou's itinerary. A radio Peking broadcast said Chou would lead a Communist Chinese delegation that will soon visit China's only European ally. It gave no dates for the visit.

Williams hustled the angry teen-ager back in line, telling him: "Keep on marching, keep on marching."

"Don't be afraid, don't be afraid, you don't need to fear," they said.

About 100 responded to the appeal.

"We are going to do this all the way in," King said of the side trip, a diversion from the march route.

Two hundred marchers set out for Itta Bena, nine miles west of Greenwood. They were returned later by truck for a second night in tents pitched in a city park, and will resume the march.

Sheriff George Smith estimated King's audience at 250.

The marchers will spend a second night in tents pitched in the park, employing most of the day for the Greenwood voter drive. The city gave permission for use of the park after a noisy, shouting demonstration by the marchers and local Negroes.

Greenwood is the county seat of Le Flore County which has 17,000 whites and 30,000 Negroes. There are 14,840 registered voters, of which 5,600 are Negro. Federal registrars have been on duty at the post office for several months.

As marchers went through the countryside, merchants closed their stores temporarily as has been the custom elsewhere along the route.

J. R. Johnson, a white rural merchant said, "I don't think this march will change much around here. People in these parts, both white and colored, are pretty well satisfied with things as is."

"I talked to Negroes about things like this and I tell them 'Go ahead and register.' I don't have nothing to do with no Ku Klux Klan or the other side either. I don't want part of it."

S. L. Hilton, a Negro county agent, said about 120 Negroes own their own farms in this rich cotton-growing delta area, with many more as renters or operators. But he said a great many have had to leave the farm because of a 1,000-acre farm that used to require 50 to 60 families to work it, now can get by with 10. Younger Negroes have been leaving for years, Hilton said, for factory jobs that pay more.

Fred Hudson, 72, a Negro who owns 76 acres of beans, cotton and corn and lives in a trim white home said he always has made a pretty good living and has no real complaints. Many Negroes aren't as prosperous, he conceded "but that is the way it is through life. Some does and some don't."

The driver of the truck carrying newsmen, Ted Alexander, said he had moved the box around for two days — not knowing who owned it. Friday morning he decided it felt as though it were empty. He opened it and the snake — a water moccasin — struck at him.

"I think I broke the hurdle record getting out of there," said Alexander, 43, of Memphis. He was not bitten. Peter Burns of the Columbia Broadcasting System killed the snake, a footer.

A fifth worker dug himself out of the debris and walked away about 10 minutes after the accident occurred.

The victims were employees of Concrete Construction Co. and Welding Engineers Co.

Minister Chao Kuan-hua, an expert on Soviet and East European affairs, for the talks with the Romanians. They met with Communist party Secretary-General Nicolai Ceausescu, Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer and other Romanian officials.

The local press is giving Chou's visit maximum publicity. His portrait appeared on all front pages together with his biography and articles praising him as a leading figure in world communism.

Scintea, the principal party organ, said Red China and Romania were linked in the ideological community of the workers' movement. It praised China's "important role in international life and in the struggle against imperialism."

Before going into the talks, Chou placed a wreath at a downtown monument to Romanian war heroes. His cavalcade of American and German-built limousines was applauded by scattered groups of citizens.

Later in the day, Chou toured the giant "August 23" metallurgical plant in Bucharest which produces much of Romania's industrial machinery exports to China.

Political talks continue today. Sunday, Chou will fly to the bustling port city of Constanta to visit Black Sea resorts. He will be accompanied by Vice Premier Emil Bodnar, an expert on East Asian affairs.

Chou will return from the provinces Tuesday to continue his talks with Ceausescu.

Auto License Plate Bill Is Approved

World Legislative Bureau
BATON ROUGE — The House Judiciary C Committee Friday approved a bill providing prestige license plates for Louisiana automobile owners. The measure was sponsored by Sen. J. C. (Sonny) Gilbert of Sicily Island.

The bill came out of committee with amendments adding implementation of the State Department of Education's driver education program to the list of monetary beneficiaries.

The bill, as amended, is expected to yield nearly $1 million additional revenue annually.

Auto owners desiring the plates would be required to pay the regular license fee plus $20.

Shall Williams, 16, of 1102 Pine St.

The Williams girl died at 3:25 a.m. Friday at St. Francis Hospital after being stabbed in the chest with a knife around 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Also stabbed was Benya Marshall, 15, also of 1102 Pine St., who was treated and released from the hospital.

King joined the First National Bank in 1962 as assistant vice president in charge of the Installment Loan Department. Before coming to the Twin Cities, King held positions with the Texas Bankers Investment Company of Odessa, Tex.; Associate Investments Corporation, Longview, Tex.; and Pacific Finance Corporation, Tyler, Tex. He has completed a course of study in the School of Banking recently held at LSU.

King is a member of the West Monroe First Methodist Church, West Monroe Kiwanis Club, West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, Highland Park Country Club, and the Masons. He resides with his wife Nancy, and two daughters — Karen and Lisa, at 405 Audubon, West Monroe.

Friday was the last day for Republicans to file as candidates in the race, according to John Cade of Alexandria, a committee member.

Walker lost to incumbent Speedy O. Long two years ago by an eight per cent vote margin, Cade said.

Walker was the only Republican to qualify as a candidate this year. Therefore there will be no primary. He will be pitted in the general election Nov. 8 against the Democratic nominee.

So far the only democrats to announce are incumbent Long of LaSalle Parish, and Rapides Parish Rep. Larry Parker.

The first Democratic primary is Aug. 13.

Walker said, when filing his papers Friday, that he was "completely dissatisfied with the condition in our government two years ago when I ran for Congress," and that he feels conditions now are much worse than they were then.

"In fact," Walker said, "we are now in real trouble."

Walker said that he has two sons who will be old enough for military service in Viet Nam within a few years. Because of this, he said, and because of other young sons coming of age, "I am vitally interested in working to develop a sensible foreign policy and restoring honesty and integrity in our government."

Walker said that because he received 46 per cent of the vote in his race for Congress two years ago, he now feels that he can get even more votes and be elected. Two years ago he said that he was only getting acquainted with the people of the district.

Walker announced that he will publish a platform statement at "the appropriate time when I will be in a position to devote full time to my candidacy."

He is married and the father of two sons and one daughter. His wife is a teacher in their home town of Winnfield.

"The Sound of Music" theme will be carried out further by the appearance and performance of other local talent.

Mrs. Alma Jo Wilkerson of Jonesville will direct the program. Miss Robbie Marie McMillin will narrate the program and Mrs. Raymond Mason is in charge of decorations.

King Named Manager Of Branch Bank

B. J. King, a vice-president of First National Bank, West Monroe, has been named manager of the Twin City Branch of First National Bank it was announced Friday by J. W. Robert, First National president.

The task forces will make a survey in their respective sectors, decide on a project and submit a report to the area coordinators, who in turn will compile the state report and forward it to the regional center.

Leaders of these groups and their colleges are Dean J. T. Stewart, Grambling; Chiles Carpenter, Louisiana Tech; Dean Murry, Louisiana College; Dean T. E. Holtzclaw, Northeast Louisiana State College; and Dr. W. Ferrell Pledger, Centenary.

The Little Rock research center, one of about 20 such institutions in the nation, is being established under Title IV of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1964.

The regional center will serve North Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Southwest Missouri, Southeast Kansas and Eastern Oklahoma. Both West Central and South Louisiana elected to join the center based at the University of Texas, officials said.

Three separate groups will be in charge of organizing the center. Dr. W. L. Bergeron of Louisiana Tech is serving as the executive director, and the task forces are under this jurisdiction.

The advisory council is composed of 36 professional educators, with five from Louisiana.

Appointment of the advisory committee, composed of lay people other than educators, is now underway. Louisiana will have five of its 40 members.

One of the purposes of Friday's meeting was to elect these five representatives, but limited attendance forced postponement of the move. Instead, the delegates decided to request each task force to select a nominee from its area.

Dr. F. Jay Taylor, Tech president, welcomed the group, stating that the center "can make a great contribution to the improvement of education in our region — at the elementary level, the secondary level and higher education as well."

A special guest at the session was Robert Curry, the senior member of the State Board of Education.

Representing Monroe were Dean Holtzclaw, District Judge Mack E. Barham and Grayson Guthrie, local bank executive.

Walker was the only Republican to qualify as a candidate this year. Therefore there will be no primary. He will be pitted in the general election Nov. 8 against the Democratic nominate.

So far the only democrats to announce are incumbent Long of LaSalle Parish, and Rapides

Parish Rep. Larry Parker.

The first Democratic primary is Aug. 13.

Walker said, when filing his papers Friday, that he was "completely dissatisfied with the condition in our government

two years ago when I ran for Congress," and that he feels conditions now are much worse than they were then.

"In fact," Walker said, "I feel that we are now in real trouble."

Walker said that he has two sons who will be old enough for military service in Viet Nam within a few years. Because of this, he said, and because of other young sons coming of age,

"I am vitally interested in working to develop sensible foreign policy and restoring honesty and integrity in our government."

Walker said that because he received 46 per cent of the vote in his race for Congress two years ago, he now feels that he can get even more votes and be elected. Two years ago he said that he was only getting acquainted with the people of the district.

Walker announced that he will publish a platform statement at

"the appropriate time when

I will be in a position to devote full time to my candidacy."

He is married and the father of two sons and one daughter.

His wife is a teacher in their home town of Winnfield.

The Sound of Music" theme will be carried out further by the appearance and performance of other local talent.

Mrs. Alma Jo Wilkerson of Jonesville will direct the program. Miss Robbie Marie Mc-

Millin will narrate the program and Mrs. Raymond Mason is in charge of decorations.

The Rev. T. W. Terrill of Bat-ton Rouge will be evangelist for a revival to be held Monday through June 26 at Cherie

Baptist Church, Route 1, West

Monroe.

Pastor of the church is the Rev. W. C. Bounds.

FDA Views Diet Food Policing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced Friday a major overhaul of regulations for special diet foods and diet supplements.

The agency estimated that Americans spend between $375 million and $500 million a year on these products.

Dr. James L. Goddard, food and drug commissioner, said the new rules should sweep away many common misconceptions about the kinds and amounts of vitamins and minerals needed in the diet, and how they are obtained.

The new labeling requirements also will give the consumer more facts about calories, Goddard said, adding: "Weight-conscious Americans will know, for example, exactly how many calories they are saving by buying artificially sweetened foods."

The regulations, designed to become effective in 180 days, are a four-year distillation of proposals advanced by the agency in 1962. Goddard said more than 50,000 comments were received, 99 per cent of which he said were the result of an organized campaign against vitamin and mineral supplements.

the proposed rules. Friday's order described the outgrowth of a review of the 1962 proposals and all the comments and recommendations received about them.

Objections must be filed within 30 days, and individual provisions may be stayed, the agency said, if there are "legally justified requests for public hearings."

The Food and Drug Administration said its new regulations will:

—Restrict "low calorie" labeling to those foods that contain 15 or fewer calories per serving.

—Limit "reduced in calorie" claims to those food products that contain at least 50 per cent fewer calories than their ordinary counterparts.

—Establish eight classes of foods that may be "fortified" with vitamins and minerals. These include breakfast cereals and iodized salt.

—Stipulate which nutritional elements, and the amounts of each, may be used in "fortified" foods.

—Prohibit extravagant promotional motion of "shotgun" multi-vitamin and mineral supplements ressing or not."

Nude' Unveiled

SARNIA, Ont. (AP) — A painting titled "Seated Nude," by artist John Boyle of St. Catharines, has been unveiled after being barred earlier. It shows a chair that gives the impression of having been sat upon by a nude man after it was newly painted.

Show sponsors in lifting the ban said: "It is felt that the public should decide for itself whether art in Canada is pro-

—The light appeared to me as I was looking out my visor as a

I was looking out my visor as a daylight and darkness and in the extreme temperatures with no disorientation or vertigo," he added. "We know I put out a lot of work that overpowered the environmental control system we had. This is not to degrade the system. It worked up to specification."

Cernan said he figured that the problem he had getting him self positioned to keep from floating away from the space- craft caused him to work too hard for the chest pack that removed moisture from his spaces — at a Manned Space- craft Center news conference.

The pair spoke frankly and eagerly of the mission that spanned three days, agreeing that what they learned added to the growing bank of knowledge needed to some day send men to the moon.

Stafford said Gemini 9 proved that radar, rather than optical devices, would be needed for an Apollo spaceship to maneuver toward the moon.

Most dramatic was Cernan's description of the trouble he encountered braving the strange world outside the spaceship as a human satellite. He had to abruptly end the walk 30 minutes early because of the fogged faceplate.

Cernan said he first realized the seriousness of the problem after he worked his way around to the rear of the spacecraft and began attaching a rocket pack — astronaut maneuvering unit (AMU) — to whip through space during the latter part of his walk.

"I was just about to make a restraint strap which was nothing more than an automobile seat buckle which comes around and fastens me rigidly to the AMU," he said, adding: "We have mirrors on the adapter which are very handy — they weren't really necessary. You can do a task once you become familiar with it without mirrors."

"But when I looked through the mirror and I looked back at the harness I had in my hand and couldn't see it, then I began to really appreciate how fogged up I was."

"I then just looked out in the black night. I could not actually see the horizon. I became a little lonely at this time. I was sitting there, we had one light instead of two — on the rear of the spacecraft. One of our lights did not come on."

"The light appeared to me as I was looking out my visor as a

Indonesia To Rely Heavily On U.S. For Financial, Technical Aid In Next Few Years

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Bankrupt but potentially rich, Indonesia will rely heavily on the United States for financial and technical aid in the next few years.

This was disclosed Friday in an interview with Foreign Minister Adam Malik, a new voice of moderation in a civilian-military regime that is trying to undo the sins of the past pro-Communist government.

The mood in this huge island-

strangled economy badly needs

Malik asked that the United States understand its new program of stabilization.

He asked that help be given by Washington on rescheduling, or delaying, repayment of debts owed by Indonesia to the United States and other countries. Inonesia was some $2.4 billion in foreign debts.

Indonesia owes the United States about $174.4 million, third largest creditor behind the Soviet Union and Japan.

"If you want to help this country, don't give away money like that," Malik said, snapping his fingers.

He asked that instead, more understanding of what Indonesia is attempting to achieve in its own way should be attempted by foreign nations.

In addition to delaying payment of debts, Malik said he hoped the United States would be willing to provide food and spare machinery parts. The United States already has contracted to sell Indonesia 50,000 tons of rice valued at more than $8 million.

Malik predicted Indonesia would ask the United States to bring back its Agency for International Development in the near future. U.S. Embassy sources have indicated this may be approved.

Despite the criticism and violence directed against the United States during the heyday of the Indonesian Communist party, America has continued to maintain working relations with

Indonesia. It is the world's fifth largest nation, with 105 million people, and is perhaps the richest nation in Asia in natural resources. This, plus the costly campaign of hostile confrontation of Malaysia and President

Sukarno's grandiose spending schemes emptied Indonesia's treasury.

American interests here were once heavy, particularly in oil and rubber. But as the Communist influence mounted, the United States pulled out its AID program in early 1965.

Since then it has adopted an attitude of keeping its mouth shut and eyes open under Ambassador Marshall Green, who arrived a year ago.

Indonesia To Rely Heavily On U.S. For Financial, Technical Aid In Next Few Years

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Bankrupt but potentially rich, Indonesia will rely heavily on the United States for financial and technical aid in the next few years.

This was disclosed Friday in an interview with Foreign Minister Adam Malik, a new voice of moderation in a civilian-military regime that is trying to undo the sins of the past pro-Communist government.

The mood in this huge island-chain nation marks a turn away from the face slapping Indonesia repeatedly handed the United States in recent years.

The slender foreign minister stressed that Indonesia did not want billions of dollars dropped in its lap from the rich United States.

"We have no way to use so much money all at once at this time," he said.

In addition to guided financial assistance, which Indonesia's strangled economy badly needs.

Malik asked that the United States understand its new program of stabilization.

He asked that help be given by Washington on rescheduling, or delaying, repayment of debts owed by Indonesia to the United States and other countries. Indonesia was some $2.4 billion in foreign debts.

Indonesia owes the United States about $174.4 million, third largest creditor behind the So-

He asked that instead, more understanding of what Indonesia is attempting to achieve in its own way should be attempted by foreign nations.

In addition to delaying payment of debts, Malik said he hoped the United States would be willing to provide food and spare machinery parts. The United States already has contracted to sell Indonesia 50,000 tons of rice valued at more than $8 million.

Malik predicted Indonesia would ask the United States to bring back its Agency for International Development in the near future. U.S. Embassy sources have indicated this may be approved.

Despite the criticism and violence directed against the United States during the heyday of the Indonesian Communist party, America has continued to maintain working relations with Indonesia.

It is the world's fifth largest nation, with 105 million people, and is perhaps the richest nation in Asia in natural resources.

American interests here were once heavy, particularly in oil and rubber. But as the Communist influence mounted, the American position decreased.

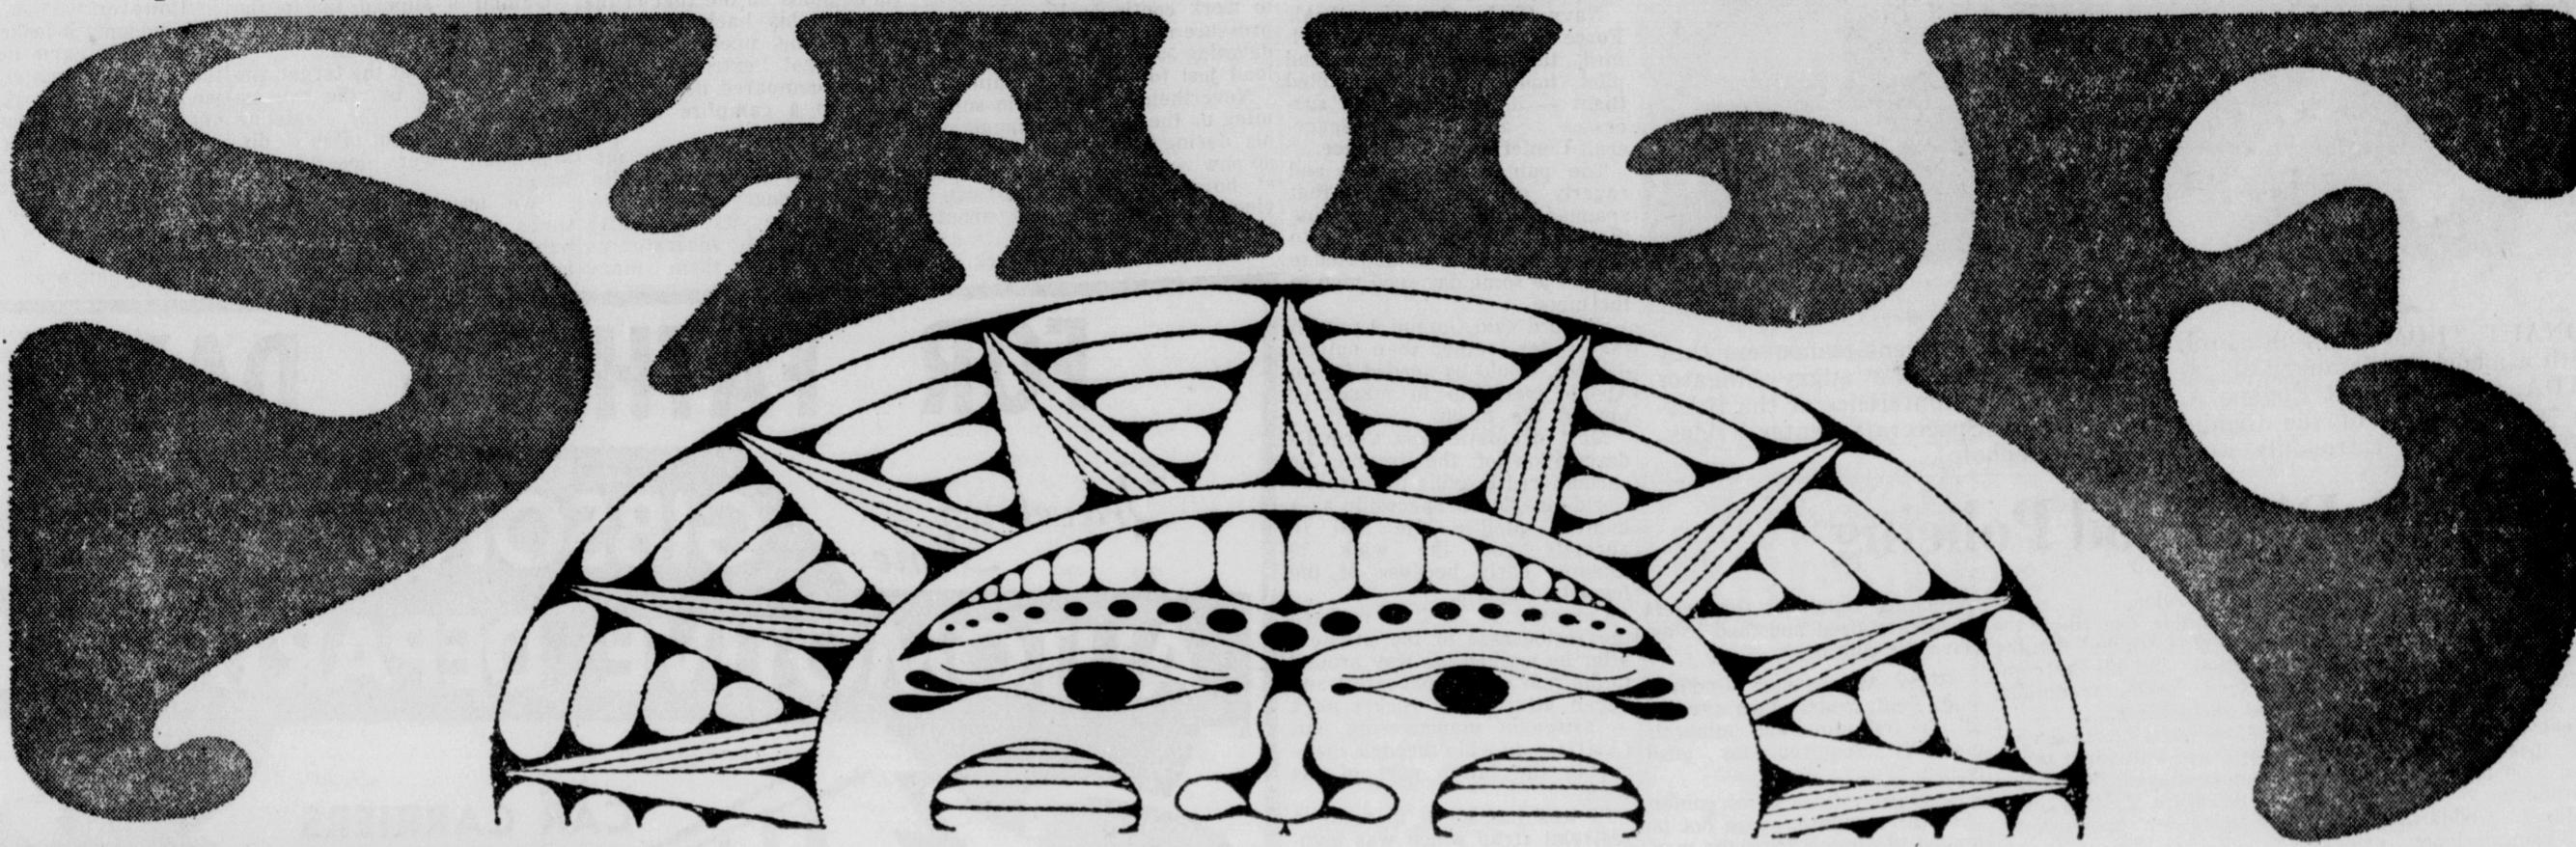

Oil firms sold out or were taken over, as were the rubber plantations. This caused a falling off in revenue from these main sources. This, plus the costly campaign of Malaysia and President Sukarno's grandiose spending schemes emptied Indonesia's treasury.

The United States pulled out its AID program in early 1965. Since then it has adopted an attitude of keeping its mouth shut and eyes open under Ambassador Marshall Green, who arrived a year ago.

8th New Orleans Hospital Okayed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Touro Infirmary became the eighth New Orleans hospital to meet civil rights requirements for participation in the Medicare program, starting July 1, the U.S. Public Health Service announced Friday.

Other New Orleans area hospitals approved earlier are Charity, DePaul, Hotel Dieu, Ochsner, Flint-Goodridge, Sara Mayo and West Jefferson.

U.S. Surgeon Gen. William H. Stewart told a group of Louisiana congressmen Thursday that his staff hopes to complete compliance procedures for as many Louisiana hospitals as possible before the July 1 deadline.

The public health service said Friday that 60 out of 159 Louisiana hospitals have now been approved.

12 Still Missing In Harbor Mishap

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve seamen still were missing Friday in the wake of a fiery New York Harbor collision that sent two tankers and two tugboats up in naphtha-fed flames. The Coast Guard listed the known dead at 20.

Seventy-one survivors were accounted for in the port's worst disaster in six years, which apparently stemmed from a mix-up in ship signals.

The Port of New York Authority said that last month it asked Congress for money to widen the narrow entrance to Newark Bay, where the British tanker Alva Cape and the American Texaco Massachusetts collided in good weather Thursday. The tugs were escorting the vessels.

Austin J. Tobin, port authority executive director, said the funds were sought to widen the main Newark Bay ship channel, and to dredge the area where it joins the Kill Van Kull between Staten Island and New Jersey.

"The Texaco tanker involved in yesterday's collision had backed out into the channel at this very spot just before it made its turn to the junction of Newark Bay and the Kill Van Kull, where the collision occurred," he added.

In telegrams to New York and New Jersey congressmen, Tobin renewed the plea for harbor improvement funds "to reduce the possibility of a recurrence of a similar or even greater maritime disaster in the Port of New York."

The port authority is a New York-New Jersey agency that supervises the world's greatest harbor.

The tanker collision and fire was the port's worst disaster since a 1960 blaze that claimed 50 lives aboard the aircraft carrier Constitution, while it was under construction in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Oklahoma Marchers To Finish In Cars

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — A winding band of rain-soaked, footloose civil rights demonstrators switched to cars Friday to complete their 100-mile march from Oklahoma City to Lawton, Okla.

"I never thought it would be this tough," said State Sen. E. Melvin Porter, a leader of the group.

About 70 demonstrators, mostly Negro teen-agers, left Oklahoma City at 7 p.m. Thursday.

By midmorning Friday, the group had dwindled to about 35 and had progressed only as far as the small farming community of Tuttle, a distance of about 25 miles. They traveled the last 4½ miles by car.

The marchers spent about two hours in Tuttle, eating and resting. They walked about two miles out of Tuttle, and again were loaded in cars and driven to Chickasha, 21 miles south of Tuttle, where they planned to hold a rally, then march through the city.

Outside of Chickasha, the group once again plans to get into cars to drive to a point made faster progress.

Mrs. Luper said she expects that "we'll get arrested again"

when the group arrives at Doe Park.

Porter and Mrs. Luper were among 12 persons arrested when they sought admission to the Lawton park last Saturday. They have been charged with violating a city ordinance prohibiting blocking of a street or sidewalk by a crowd. Ten children in the group last Saturday were not charged.

The marchers were pelted by rain Thursday night and Friday — and weathermen say more rain is expected through today.

There have been no incidents in connection with the march.

Vote Delay Scheduled

An attempt to delay a vote to give time for another legal look into the parish's fireworks ban was pledged Friday by Ward 3 Ouachita Parish Police Juror Curtis Joiner in the wake of an opinion by the State Attorney General's office that the ban oversteps the jury's authority.

Arlan Rawls, Ward 5, has said he will ask the repeal of the ordinance prohibiting the use, sale and manufacture of fireworks in the parish when the jury meets Monday.

Rawls, an opponent of the Joiner - sponsored ban, released the opinion Thursday in the form of a letter he received from an assistant attorney general.

"As to legality," Joiner said, "I would like to have our legal advisor examine the opinion."

"The opinion is simply an opinion and does not mean that the law could not be interpreted differently," he said. The ban corrects "90 per cent of the trouble" experienced with the use of fireworks, he added.

The ordinance was passed on March 14 by a vote of 11-8 and later survived an attempt at repeal lead by Rawls, with the vote at 10-9.

Filing for Democrats closes at 5 p.m. Monday, Republicans have until the close of business Wednesday.

The Coast Guard said the Esso Vermont, shepherding the British tanker, apparently blew up when naphtha from the Alva Cape poured over the tug's engines.

A seaman aboard the Texaco Massachusetts, who withheld his name, told a newsmen he saw the Esso Vermont explode and added: "I don't know if it was the fumes from our ship or the naphtha from the other that made her go."

The 604-foot Texaco tanker had discharged her petroleum cargo and was leaving empty on a voyage to Port Arthur, Tex. The Alva Cape was nearing the end of a long voyage from India, where it had picked up its naphtha cargo.

Donald Baker, 45, harbor pilot aboard the British tanker, indicated a mixup in signals may have caused the collision. He claimed the Texaco tanker signaled that she would cross the bow of the Alva Cape, and that he had given an acknowledgement.

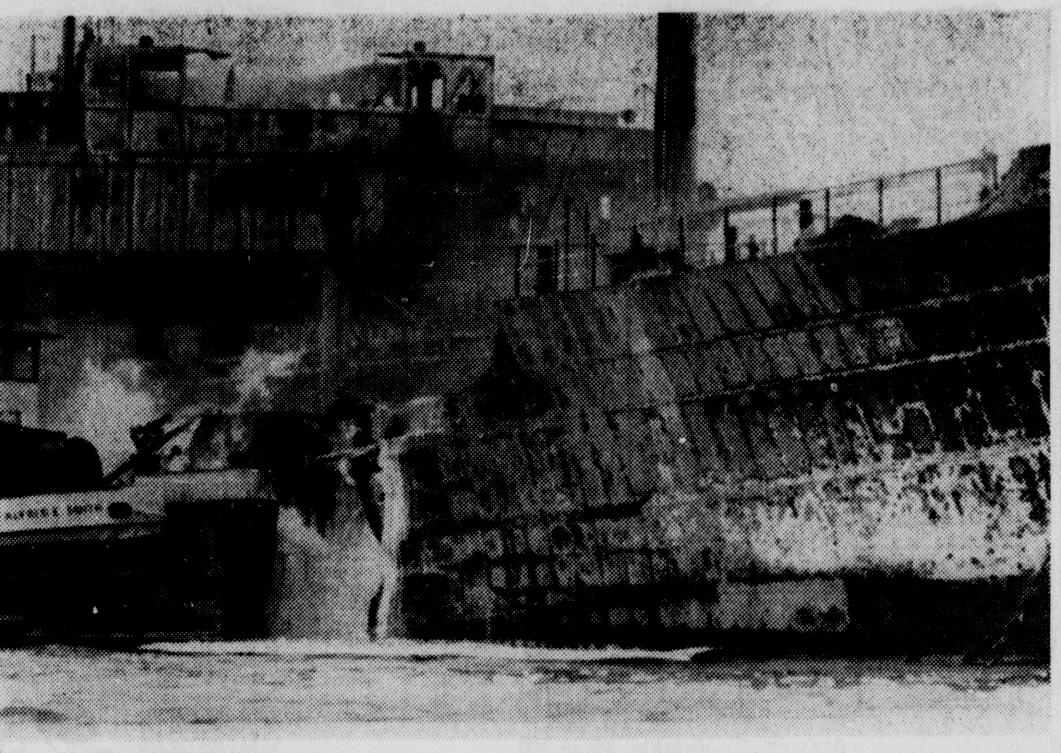

Instead the Texaco Massachusetts sliced almost head on into the Alva Cape.

Among those who died was the skipper of the Texaco Massachusetts, Capt. Richard F. Pinder, 51, of Clarksboro, N.J.

Outside of Chickasha, the group once again plans to get into cars to drive to a point about five miles north of Lawton where they were to camp overnight.

The goal of the marchers is to break down racial barriers at Doe Doe Park, a privately owned amusement center in Lawton.

Porter said that although progress of the march was slow, he was disappointed only in his inability to withstand the pace.

"I really thought I could walk the entire one hundred miles, but I don't think that now," the 36-year-old Negro said after arriving in Tuttle. "My muscles are sore. When this is over I'll stay in better shape."

Dan David, 23, an ex-Marine from Oklahoma City, one of two white persons in the group of marchers when it reached Tuttle, complained that the march wasn't very well organized.

Clara Luper, adviser to the Oklahoma City Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said she was satisfied with the march although she also had hoped the marchers would have made faster progress.

Mrs. Luper said she expects that "we'll get arrested again" when the group arrives at Doe Doe Park.

Porter and Mrs. Luper were among 12 persons arrested when they sought admission to the Lawton park last Saturday. They have been charged with violating a city ordinance prohibiting blocking of a street or sidewalk by a crowd. Ten children in the group last Saturday were not charged.

If you have a question you want answered, write or call "Mr. Editor, Tell Me Please," at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it on to you each Saturday in this column.

Please give me any information you may have on the subject of cats, especially females and the resultant kittens. Will the city or parish be of any assistance in ridding the neighborhood of this pest? Is there a repellent of some kind, short of poison, which would help solve this problem?

When contacted on this matter earlier, and again recently, the Monroe police department said it had no authority to destroy cats and referred to the Ouachita Humane Society. However, the Society does not have equipment nor the personnel to go out and snare felines to remove them from premises. The parish health unit can step in only when it becomes a public health hazard, a decision which they would make after a check. There are no ordinances against cats, such as dogs running at large, which would alleviate the situation. There are repellents used against dogs, but it is not known if these would work on cats. The best bet would be to check with a feed store or other type of business which offer the repellents for sale.

Does the City of Monroe pay the instructor for the ceramic classes being held in the recreation centers, or does the instructor just use the center?

The ceramic classes are part of the recreation program provided by the City of Monroe. The teachers or instructors work for the department during specified hours each week. Classes are open to the public.

Could you please tell me why my son-in-law who is stationed in Viet Nam has only a knife to fight with? He wrote this home to us and we would like to know if the army is that short of guns.

Several persons have written to the paper expressing the same situation. We would suggest writing to your congressman. However, Rep. Otto E. Passman knows of the situation and has attempted to do something about it in the past. Perhaps, a letter to Sec. of Defense Robert McNamara may do some good.

I have always heard that the Arctic tern takes the longest migration of any bird in the world. Is this true?

From all information we can gather, that is true. The bird is born in the Arctic Circle. In the autumn, it flies to the South, as far as Greenland, Iceland or Labrador; then makes a non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean. After he arrives in Europe, he flies directly south to the region of the Cape of Good Hope, on the extreme southern tip of Africa. As the year advances he flies westward, across the Atlantic again to Brazil, then northward, completing his trip of about 25,000 miles with a summer stop-over in the area where he was born. Some terns head southwest to Alaska, from there to Hawaii, returning to the Arctic Circle with the approach of summer.

Were the Olympic games ever banned?

The first major Olympic Games were staged by the Greeks in 776 B.C., and held continually for over 1100 years. Then in 392 A.D., after the Roman conquest of Greece, the Olympics were banned by Emperor Theodosius because the Greeks and Romans mingled in too many side-issue brawls. The games were reborn in 1892 in Paris.

Is there an age limit, both minimum and maximum, for bus drivers? Also for cafeteria workers?

School boards may not employ bus drivers under 18 years nor over 65 years of age. John R. Hunter Jr., assistant attorney general for the State of Louisiana, in a recent ruling directed to the LaSalle Parish School Board, pointed out that one of the conditions of hiring school bus drivers is that he, or she, become members of the Louisiana School Employees' Retirement System. Since a bus driver employed by a school board must be a member of the Retirement System as a condition of employment, and since no person who has attained the age of 50 years shall be eligible to become a member of the system, the attorney general ruled that a person employed as a bus driver is ineligible for employment if he is over 50 years of age. However, a provision of the state statute stresses that this restriction does not mean that a person, on reaching 50, becomes ineligible if he is already a driver. The no-hiring clause is for the first time the bus driver is employed by the school board. Cafeteria workers come under the same restrictions.

What is the minimum wage per hour?

A publication of the United States Department of Labor, "Handy Reference Guide to the Fair Labor Standards Act," says "unless they (employees) are specifically exempt, must be paid a minimum wage of at least $1.25 an hour and overtime compensation at a rate of not less than 1 1/2 times their regular rates of pay for hours worked over 40 in any work week." However, there are exemptions, such as executive, administrative and professional employees; outside salesmen; employees of service establishments primarily engaged in the sale and service of automobiles and farm implements; and employees of such establishments as hotels, motels, restaurants, motion picture theatres, seasonal amusement and recreational establishments, hospitals and nursing homes, schools for handicapped or gifted children; and others.

Are there any military academies for boys in Louisiana?

The only one we know in Louisiana is the New Orleans Academy (NOA). Mississippi, however, has a number of academies for young boys. Some of these are in our area — Chamberlain-Hunt in Port Gibson, for instance.

I would like to know where should a person write to get his name changed? Is there a fee?

A person must go into court to get his name changed. The first step is to hire an attorney to handle the many little details.

Nimble Paper Changes Hands For 2nd Time

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — The Pascagoula Chronicle changed hands again Friday, the second time in two days.

The afternoon and Sunday newspaper was acquired Thursday by Thomson Newspapers Inc. of Canada from Ralph Nicholson, along with some Alabama newspaper interests of Nicholson.

Friday the Mobile Press-Register announced it had acquired the Chronicle from Thomson and would combine it with its Mississippi Press-Register operation in Pascagoula.

Under the new ownership, the afternoon newspaper will be named the Mississippi Press and The Chronicle and will appear Monday through Friday.

The Sunday edition will be published as the Mississippi Press-Register and The Chronicle.

Vapor Lights Are Installed

Two 1000 watt mercury vapor lights have been installed at the intersection of N. 12th and Forsythe, and Oliver Road and Forsythe, according to Police Chief James Kelley of the Monroe Police Department.

These lights are part of an experimental program to determine the best type of lighting for Monroe's streets. Three experimental lights have been operating on DeSiard St. for some weeks.

This experiment is being conducted in conjunction with a $15 million power plant bond issue and is a part of the street lighting program.

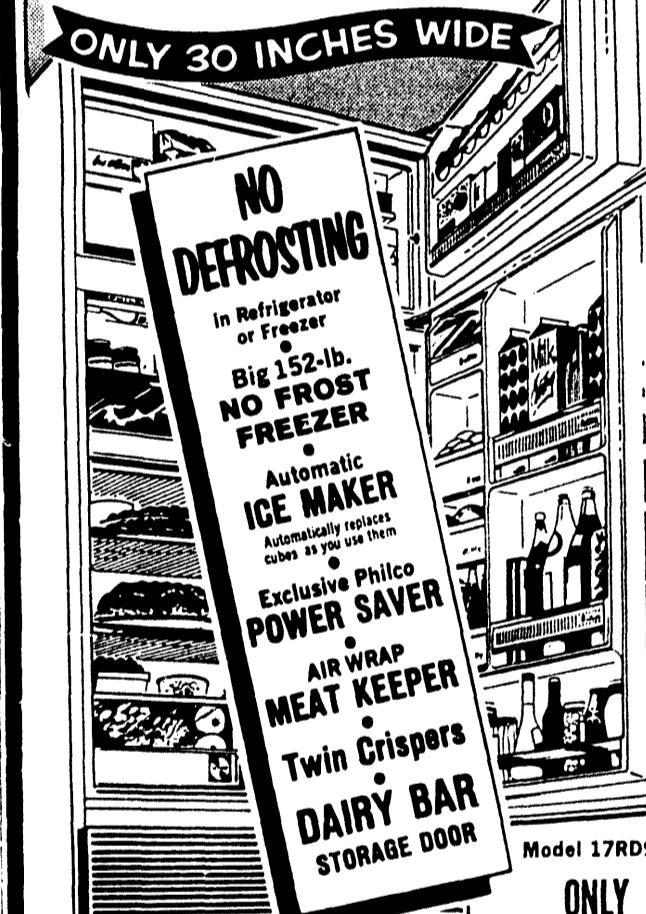

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

The most likely to be realized ambition yet was expressed by a young college coed who was overheard saying: "I don't want no scholarship."

If you have a question you want answered, write or call "Mr. Editor, Tell Me Please," at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it on to you each Saturday in this column.

Please give me any information you may have on the subject of cats, especially females and the resultant kittens. Will the city or parish be of any assistance in ridding the neighborhood of this pest? Is there a repellent of some kind, short of poison, which would help solve this problem?

When contacted on this matter earlier, and again recently, the Monroe police department said it had no authority to destroy cats and referred to the Ouachita Humane Society. However, the Society does not have equipment nor the personnel to go out and snare felines to remove them from premises. The parish health unit can step in only when it becomes a public health hazard, a decision which they would make after a check. There are no ordinances against cats, such as dogs running at large, which would alleviate the situation. There are repellents used against dogs, but it is not known if these would work on cats. The best bet would be to check with a feed store or other type of business which offer the repellents for sale.

Does the City of Monroe pay the instructor for the ceramic classes being held in the recreation centers, or does the instructor just use the center?

The ceramic classes are part of the recreation program provided by the City of Monroe. The teachers or instructors work for the department during specified hours each week. Classes are open to the public.

Could you please tell me why my son-in-law who has only a knife to fight with? He wrote this home to us and we would like to know if the army is that short of guns.

Several persons have written to the paper expressing the same situation. We would suggest writing to your congressman. However, Rep. Otto E. Passman knows of the situation and has attempted to do something about it in the past. Perhaps, a letter to Sec. of Defense Robert McNamara may do some good.

I have always heard that the Arctic tern takes the longest migration of any bird in the world. Is this true?

From all information we can gather, that is true. The bird is born in the Arctic Circle. In the autumn, it flies to the South, as far as Greenland, Iceland or Labrador, then makes a non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean. After he arrives in Europe, he flies directly south to the region of the Cape of Good Hope, on the extreme southern tip of Africa. As the year advances he flies westward, across the Atlantic again to Brazil, then northward, completing his trip of about 25,000 miles with a summer stop-over in the area where he was born. Some terns head southwest to Alaska, from there to Hawaii, returning to the Arctic Circle with the approach of summer.

Nimble Paper Changes Hands For 2nd Time

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — The Pascagoula Chronicle changed hands again Friday, the second time in two days.

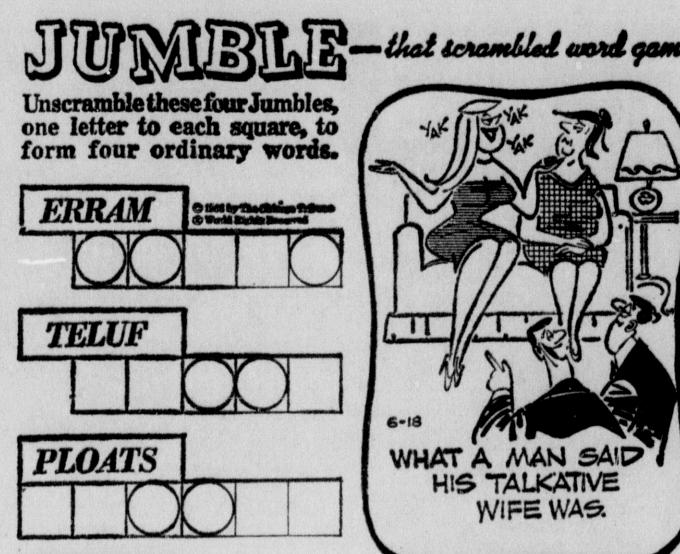

The afternoon and Sunday newspaper was acquired Thursday by Thomson Newspapers Inc. of Canada from Ralph Nicholson, along with some Alabama newspaper interests of Nicholson.

Friday the Mobile Press-Register announced it had acquired the Chronicle from Thomson and would combine it with its Mississippi Press-Register operation in Pascagoula.

Under the new ownership, the afternoon newspaper will be named the Mississippi Press and The Chronicle and will appear Monday through Friday. The Sunday edition will be published as the Mississippi Press-Register and The Chronicle.

Vapor Lights Are Installed

Two 1000 watt mercury vapor lights have been installed at the intersection of N. 12th and Forsythe, and Oliver Road and Forsythe, according to Police Chief James Kelley of the Monroe Police Department.

These lights are part of an experimental program to determine the best type of lighting for Monroe's streets. Three experimental lights have been operating on DeSiard St. for some weeks.

This experiment is being conducted in conjunction with a $15 million power plant bond issue and is a part of the street lighting program.

What is the minimum wage per hour?

A publication of the United States Department of Labor, "Handy Reference Guide to the Fair Labor Standards Act," says "unless they (employees) are specifically exempt, must be paid a minimum wage of at least $1.25 an hour and overtime compensation at a rate of not less than 1 1/2 times their regular rates of pay for hours worked over 40 in any work week." However, there are exemptions, such as executive, administrative and professional employees; outside salesmen; employees of service establishments primarily engaged in the sale and service of automobiles and farm implements; and employees of such establishments as hotels, motels, restaurants, motion picture theaters, seasonal amusement and recreational establishments, hospitals and nursing homes, schools for handicapped or gifted children; and others.

Flames Destroy Eighteen Planes

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Flames fed by high octane aviation fuel raced through a hangar at Arlington Municipal Airport Friday, destroyed 18 aircraft and caused damage estimated in excess of $300,000.

Exploding gasoline tanks in the aircraft spewed bursts of flame high into the air. "When we got here it was blazing up all over," Fire Chief

Pat Martin said. "The way those gas tanks kept exploding — all through the fire — we're lucky no one was hurt."

Cause of the fire was not determined at once.

Damage estimates ranged from $300,000 to $350,000, including one airplane valued by an aviation executive at $85,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre pitched a five-hitter and Bobby Richardson rapped three key hits as the New York Yankees defeated Detroit 5-2 Friday night.

Stottlemyre, bringing his record at 8-6, blanked the Tigers on three hits until the eighth inning when Dick McAuliffe led off with a single and Al Kaline hit a two-run homer deep into the lower left field stands.

By then, however, the New York right-hander had a comfortable lead.

Earl Wilson, making his first start since the Tigers acquired him from Boston, retired the first nine batters, but the Yankees got to him for a run in the fourth and knocked him out with a four-run fifth inning rally.

Slugging Robinsons Lead Birds Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Baltimore's Robinson sluggers, Frank and Brooks, accounted for five runs with homers in powering the American League leading Orioles to a 5-3 victory over Boston Friday night.

Frank Robinson tied Boston's George Scott for the AL home run lead by cracking his 17th after Jerry Snyder singled in the third inning.

Brooks hiked his league-leading runs batted in total to 53 by lining his seventh homer after

McCovey May Have All-Star Post Sacked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie McCovey, called Stretch by his teammates on the San Francisco Giants because of the distance he can reach for throws, may have the National League All-Star first base position within his elongated grasp.

"The way he can stretch for the ball cuts two or 1 1/2 steps off the runner," said shortstop Hal Lanier, who should know.

Lanier remembers last Sunday when he took a grounder by Tommy Davis deep in the hole during the ninth inning and threw it first.

McCovey reached out and grabbed the ball just before the Los Angeles Dodger left fielder came down on the bag. The Giants led 3-1 the time. And the next batter homered. The Giants won 3-2.

In past seasons, the 6-foot-4 McCovey was not known for his fielding, although it wasn't as bad as some critics said. Now he ranges far to his left and right for grounders and pop-ups and considers all past criticism of his glove work a base canard.

"I don't want to sound like I'm bragging," said McCovey. "But I've always had good range. In other years I've been a little leery of using it, thinking I might be going out of my territory."

"Against a left-handed batter I'm hoping 100 per cent of the time he'll hit to me. I guess you could say I've got confidence now."

Lanier said, "I would say that Mac's fielding has improved 90—wait, make that 100—per cent since I first saw him in 1962."

Talking about McCovey's fielding, of course, is like talking about a burlesque dancer's brains. Who cares?

This is the man who hit 39 homers last year, more than anyone else in the majors except Willie Mays who sits one dressing stall away.

National League Rookie of the Year in 1960 and a co-holder of the league home run title three years later, McCovey maintains that it takes him some time each year to get into the groove. But in three days last week McCovey smacked Nos. 11, 12 and 13.

"I think I'm always a slow starter as far as home runs are concerned," said McCovey, who didn't get his first this season (a grand slam) until the 15th game. "It didn't really concern me because I was hitting for (a .300) average."

"But one day at a luncheon, Chub Feeney asked me when I was going to hit a homer. Then I became a little concerned. Of course, I didn't go out and try for home runs. That gets you nothing. But I was concerned."

Chub Feeney, it should be mentioned, is the club vice president and the man with whom the players negotiate their salaries. He pays McCovey for those home runs. Let those little guys hit for average."

Ford, Ferrari, Each Minus Veteran, Tune Up For Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — Ford and Ferrari, each minus a veteran driver, tuned up Friday for their expected duel in the 24-hour Le Mans automobile classic starting today.

The entire 13-car Ford team reportedly threatened to walk out after one driver, Dr. Richard Thompson, who was teaming with Graham Hill of England, was disqualified for failing to report an accident in which another Ford car was badly damaged.

The dispute was resolved when Ford — despite backing from Porsche owners — agreed to accept a replacement driver, Brian Muir of Australia.

Muir will be allowed a practice session before the 11 a.m., EDT, start today.

No one was hurt in the accident and the Thompson car only slightly damaged. The other car was out for good, but was only a standby machine.

Ferrari lost its No. 1 driver when John Surtees of Britain quit in a huff over the addition of a third man to his team.

Surtees, former world driving champion, charged that team manager Eugenio Dragoni, was trying to make sure an Italian would be at the wheel in case Ferrari won when he named Ludovico Scarfiotti to the team. Surtees also said he felt the addition of another pilot was an insinuation he might not be able to go the full 24 hours.

Ferrari, Le Mans winner for the past six years, has 14 cars in the 55-car race, regarded as the world's toughest test of men and machines.

Three of the Ferraris will be the new P-3, 4-liter models, the newest creation of the Italian factory. Three will be the 2-liter Dinos, which will be running mostly against the seven 2-liter Porsches and three 1.9-liter Matr-Brns in the race.

Eight of the Ford entries are the Mark II models driven by powerful 7-liter motors. The others are GT-40 models with 4.7-liter motors which may do well in their class but are not expected to be fast enough for the top Chevrolet motor, will be the this month in Germany, it faces overwhelming odds with only one car in the race with an automatic transmission. Phil Hill is one car in the Le Mans.

Almost overlooked in the trials this week, Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., three-time Le Mans winner in a Ferrari, and Joakim Bonnier of Sweden will be the drivers.

Although Chaparral, powered by a

Phil Hill last year in a Ford, is 138 m.p.h.

The record for the total distance traveled in a race — 2,916 miles for an average of 127 m.p.h. — was set in 1964 by Jean Guichet of France and Nino Vaccarella of Italy in a Ferrari.

Ferrari is the favorite to win again this year despite efforts by Enzo Ferrari, the company's boss, to downgrade his chances.

He won't attend, as usual, but Harry Ford II, chairman of the company, will be on hand as marshal of the race.

Leo Beebe, the company's racing manager, hopes to give his boss a good show.

"This time we're ready," he said.

Whitworth Leads Milwaukee Play At Midway Mark

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth withstood a rally by Donna Caponi and built her lead to three strokes at the midway mark in the Milwaukee Jaycee Open Golf Tournament Friday.

Miss Whitworth shot a one-over-par 71 for a 36-hole total of 139. Miss Caponi came back from a three-over-par outgoing nine to finish with an even-par 70 and a 142 total.

The best round of the day was turned in by veteran Marilyn Smith, who shot a two-under 68 to move back into contention after a dismal opening day 78.

The 21-year-old Miss Caponi Sandra Spuzich matched par carded a 32 on the incoming nine as she birdied four of five holes in one stretch.

Susie Maxwell, who had an opening 70, ballooned to an 81 take over third place with 144.

Sandra Haynie shot a 70 to take a 151 total that put her well behind the leaders.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The United States Olympic Wrestling Committee nominated Erie Tom Lumly of Tulsa, Okla., as manager of the team. Lumly (Jimmy) Miller of Cornell University Friday to serve as coach of the U.S. Amateur Wrestling Foundation, which raises funds for international competition.

All-State

Discuss Ace

Northeast State has strengthened one of the weak points on its track team by signing all-state discus thrower John Hollingsworth of Behrman High School.

Hollingsworth was Louisiana's No. 2 prep discus thrower this spring with a throw of 172 feet. He is also a good shot putter, according to Northeast Coach Bob Groseclose, who signed Hollingsworth. Groseclose said the recruit's best distance of the shot was "around 55 feet."

Northeast scored fewer points in the discus than in any other event during the 1966 track season.

The Behrman athlete is the fourth high school track and field star to sign with the Indians. Others are sprinter Kenny Brazzel of Neville of Monroe and pole vaulters Pete Lenox of Camden, Ark., and Tom Miller of Haynesville.

Colavito's

Home Run

Touch Lost

NEW YORK (AP) — Rocky Colavito says he hasn't lost his home run touch.

He's just lost his touch — period.

"Whenever I'm not going good someone asks me if I've lost my home run touch," the slugging Cleveland outfielder said by way of explaining his pet peeve. "It's been that way my whole career."

"They want to know if you've lost it every time you have a bad spell. Now that I've been around for awhile, they ask it even more often."

How then does Colavito account for the fact he has hit only six homers this season?

"I haven't been waiting good — period," he said.

"I haven't been timing things right. I've been out in front of some pitches and swinging late on others. I've been having trouble driving the ball."

"It's usually a simple thing like timing 98 or 99 times out of 100 that gets you in a slump," Colavito continued. "But guy's are always looking for a real big reason — like you've lost your home run touch."

Colavito then pointed to his .236 batting average as the answer to the home-run touch story.

"I'm not making any excuses," he said.

"I've had slow starts before and I've had some years where I didn't have slow starts. There's nothing physically wrong with me. I've just been off on my timing and not hitting.

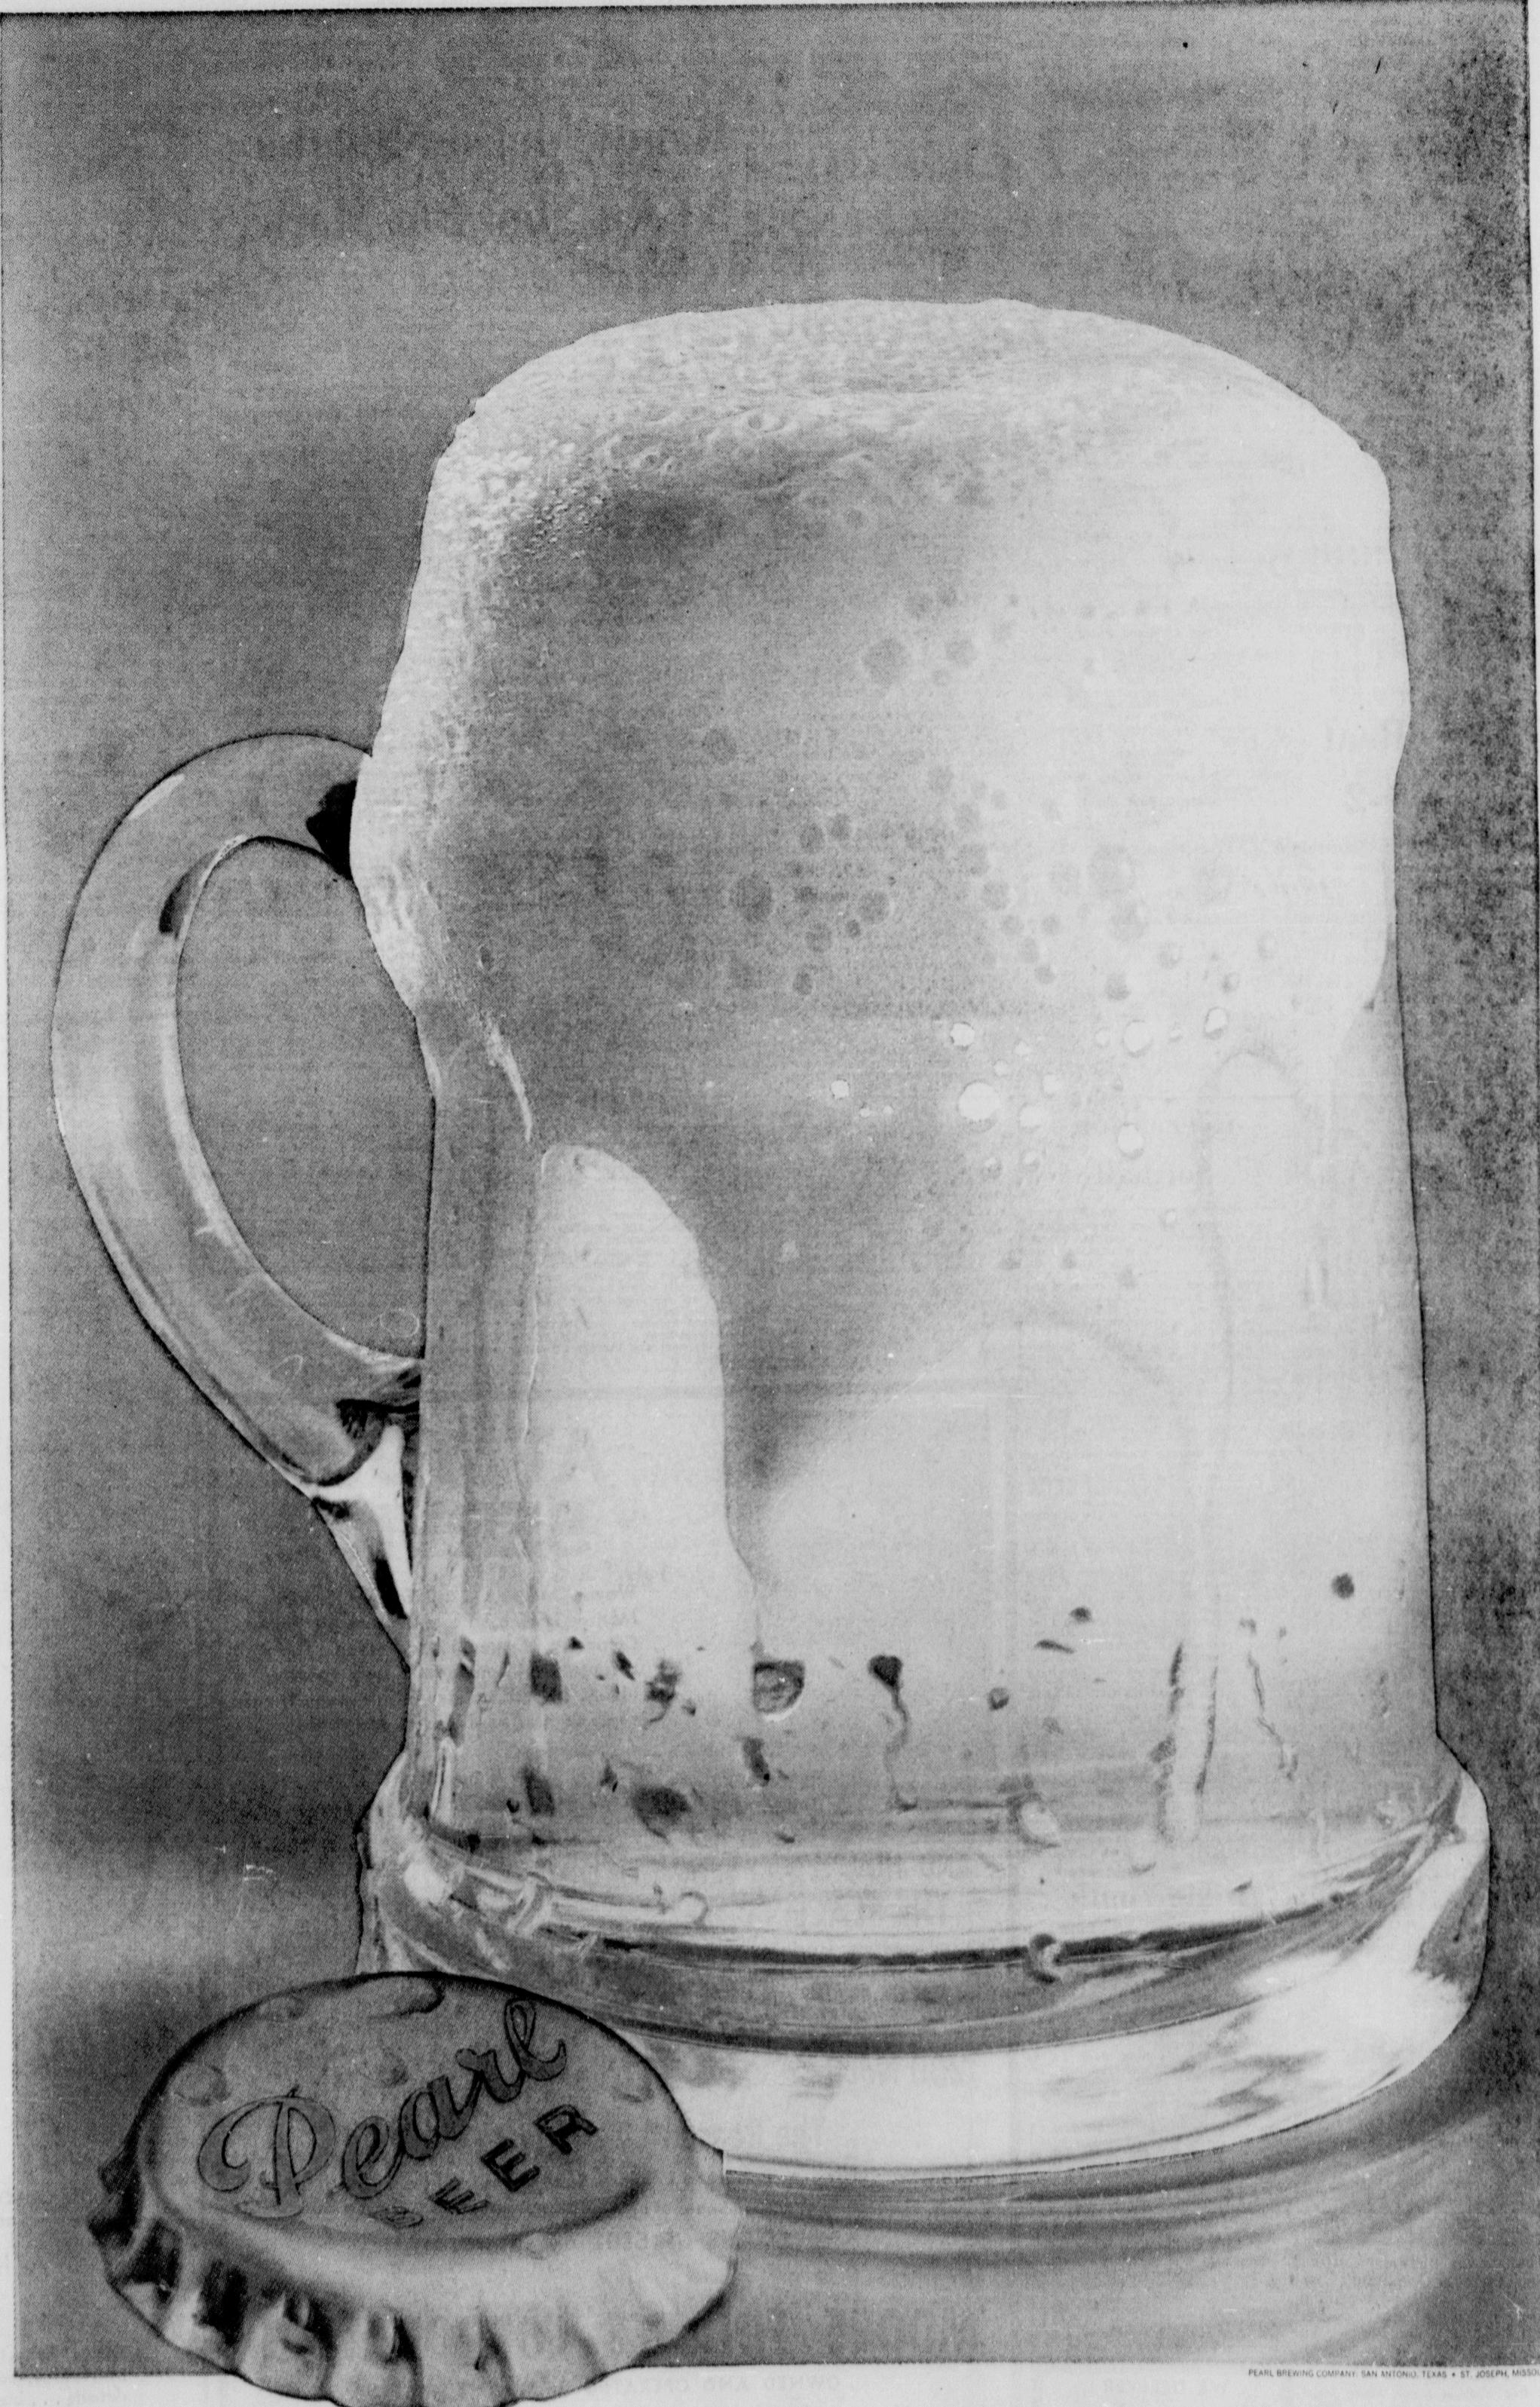

"When you don't have your timing, you don't hit, and you don't get homers. But I'm starting to feel better now — I should be able to get going."

Colavito had his best home run productions years from 1958 through 1962, collecting 41-42-35-34 and 37. In 1963 he fell to 22. He rose to 34 in 1964 but tumbled again last year to 26.

"Nobody's the same as he was a couple of years ago," Colavito pointed out. "I'm not the real free swinger I used to be. I try to be more consistent now — hit to right where the situation calls for."

"But I don't think I've lost any power in my swing. Pitchers have gotten me out before, and they will again."

"But have I lost my home run touch? no."

Miss Harmon Honored Prior To Wedding

An arrangement of white wedding bells and lilies of the valley bowed with white satin streamers adorned the entrance of the Daniel Edward Dupree home on Sherwood Drive last evening as guests arrived for one of the concluding prenuptial courtesies to Miss Eleanor Lee Harmon and James Duke Daniels.

Miss Harmon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leon Harmon and will wed Mr. Daniels, of New Orleans, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Duke Daniels, at 10 this morning in her home on Lakeshore Drive, with a garden reception following the ceremony.

Guests were greeted by Dr. and Mrs. Dupree in the entrance where a branched wrought-iron candleabrum holding glowing white tapers reposed on a wrought iron support console. A pair of white love birds nestled atop the candleabrum were reflected in an antique mirror of Spanish motif. Magnolia blossoms and foliage

'Shopping For A Father' Bad Way To Seek Husband

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with a 13-year-old son. This lad has delivered me an ultimatum. He is to have a "father" of his own by the next Fathers and Sons dinner at the "Y." I have tried to assure him that I've been looking, but haven't found one yet. He has threatened to get his own, and believe me, Abby, if you could see some of the playmates he brings home, you would understand my concern.

When I say I have been looking I am not joking. I have joined the church choir, Parents Without Partners, Girl Scouts (leader), and have even volunteered to chaperone teen dances hoping to find an eligible male my age.

I have even gone to some of the better bars and lounges thinking I might meet a nice, lonesome guy who wants a ready-made family. No dice. There is one young man, however. He's my age. He doesn't drink and doesn't date. (He's shy.) I think I can wrangle a date with him. Should I go after him (subtly) or should I be honest and tell him what I have in mind for him?

"LOOKING" DEAR LOOKING: If you tell him what you have "in mind," you are out of yours. Now you deliver your son an ultimatum. Tell him you are not about to sit across the breakfast table for the rest of your life with a hastily grabbed off character just so HE can

Read In Candlelight Setting

Lighted tapers in branched candelabra entwined with southern smilax formed a setting in Archibald First Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Alice Faye Free and Robert Edward Gildersleeve Jr., on Saturday, June 4 at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dorson Free of Archibald and parents of the bridegroom are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Edward Gildersleeve of Natchitoches. Baskets of white gladioli flanking an arch of smilax completed the altar setting and alternate pews were marked with candle-lighted hurricane lamps. Rev. Henry Cox performed the double ring ceremony following appropriate nuptial music by Mrs. John A. Logan, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Kenneth Bradshaw of West Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was wearing a floor length gown of white satin, embellished with appliques of chantilly lace encrusted with white pearls and sequins. Long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Sequins bordered the chapel train of lace which was attached at the waist by a small lace bow. A crown of pearls and crystals held her veil of white illusion. The bride carried a bouquet comprised of 12 white orchids.

The incoming president, Mrs. Ragus, presented committees for the coming year. Appointed were: civics and projects, Mrs. Ernest Newman, chairman; Mrs. Frank Phillips, Mrs. O. S. Brown, Mrs. W. P. ## U. S. Officials See Faint Signs Of Red Morale Weakening In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials said Friday there are faint signs of weakening Communist morale in Viet Nam — but no hints from Hanoi that it will move toward peace.

This word was given to U.S. educators at a State Department foreign policy briefing while Washington watched the latest diplomatic feelers toward North Viet Nam.

Canadian envoy Chester Ronning is on his second visit to Hanoi this year. U.S. roving ambassador W. Averell Harriman stopped off at Ottawa Thursday, and Canadian Ambassador Charles S.A. Ritchie called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk Friday.

But press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he knows of no specific peacemaking effort now. He said Harriman was in Canada on North Atlantic Treaty Organization and East-West affairs. A Canadian Embassy spokesman said Ritchie was just making a farewell call before leaving Washington.

Ronning saw North Viet Nam President Ho Chi Minh last March, obviously with little success then. The Canadians have been talking of the possibilities of the three-nation control commission for Southeast Asia as an instrument to help end the war. The commission is made up of Canada, Poland and India and was set up under the Geneva accords which ended the French effort to retain Indochina.

Rusk; William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs; and Richard I. Phillips, acting assistant secretary for public affairs, were among the listed speakers as the 1,230 educators from around the country concluded a two-day briefing and discussion of international affairs teaching. Under the rules of the conference, the principal speakers could not be quoted by name or their government agency identified.

The teachers were told that morale is the key to how the military campaign is going and there now are faint signs of a breakdown in the Reds' will to go on fighting.

However, from North Viet Nam's capital there are no signs that the Ho regime is prepared to move in any way out of the war, either through peace negotiations or through a reduction in forces brought about without formal talks, it was stated.

The educators heard also that the North Vietnamese appear to quit the war effort. The Hanoi authorities appear to understand that domestic criticism of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy does not mean gravity is in the United States, the U.S. officials said.

This word was given to U.S. educators at a State Department foreign policy briefing while Washington watched the latest diplomatic feelers toward North Viet Nam.

Canadian envoy Chester Ronning is on his second visit to Hanoi this year. U.S. roving ambassador W. Averell Harriman stopped off at Ottawa Thursday, and Canadian Ambassador Charles S.A. Ritchie called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk Friday.

But press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he knows of no specific peacemaking effort now. He said Harriman was in Canada on North Atlantic Treaty Organization and East-West affairs. A Canadian Embassy spokesman said Ritchie was just making a farewell call before leaving Washington.

Ronning saw North Viet Nam President Ho Chi Minh last March, obviously with little success then. The Canadians have been talking of the possibilities of the three-nation control commission for Southeast Asia as an instrument to help end the war. The commission is made up of Canada, Poland and India and was set up under the Geneva accords which ended the French effort to retain Indochina.

Rusk; William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs; and Richard I. Phillips, acting assistant secretary for public affairs, were among the listed speakers as the 1,230 educators from around the country concluded a two-day briefing and discussion of international affairs teaching. Under the rules of the conference, the principal speakers could not be quoted by name or their government agency identified.

The teachers were told that morale is the key to how the military campaign is going and there now are faint signs of a signs that the Ho regime is go on fighting.

However, from North Viet Nam's capital there are no reduction in forces brought about without formal talks, it was stated.

The educators heard also that the North Vietnamese appear to quit the war effort. The Hanoi authorities appear to understand that domestic criticism of President Johnson's to understand where the center Viet Nam policy does not mean of gravity is in the United States, the U.S. officials said.

TODD Whatley, Hugo, Okla. rancher and former world champion rodeo cowboy, was shot to death Friday at the Choctaw County fairgrounds. A Hugo businessman, Ed Kizer, whose wife was wounded in the shooting, has been charged in Whatley's death. (AP Wirephoto)

LeBlanc Returns For Qualifying

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One-time patent medicine king Dudley J. LeBlanc flew to Louisiana Thursday from France to qualify to run for Congress for a third time as a Democrat.

Republicans, meanwhile, set the stage for their first primary battle for a U.S. House seat this century.

The 73-year-old LeBlanc, a state senator, will run against Rep. Edwin E. Willis, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Willis, 61, who has been in ill health since collapsing in Washington during the final stages of his Committee's Ku Klux Klan probe earlier this year, has two other primary foes in the 3rd District.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, seeking his sixth term, will be opposed in the Democratic primary by State Sen. J. D. DeBileaux of Baton Rouge and Troycce Guice of Ferriday. Republicans didn't put up a candidate.

The qualifying deadline for congressional and state posts was 5 p.m. Friday.

Democratic State Chairman C. H. (Sammy) Downs of Alexandria said he'd accept any late qualifiers for the Senate race if their filing papers were postmarked before 5 p.m. Most congressional district chairmen said they wouldn't take any late-comers.

LeBlanc, who developed and promoted the tonic Hadacol in the late 40s and early 50s, flew to Lafayette from Paris to qualify. He said he had been scheduled to see President Charles DeGaulle in Paris but the French leader was ill.

The peppery LeBlanc, defeated twice before by Willis, rushed away to fly to Rome. He said he has an audience on Monday with Pope Paul VI. LeBlanc, who suffered a severe heart attack 13 months ago, is on a special mission to Europe for Gov. John J. McKeithen.

The primary is Aug. 13; a second primary—if necessary—will be held Sept. 24; the general election is Nov. 8.

If no candidates qualify for a post, the various party executive committees may certify candidates within 10 days.

Bank Has Photoguard Cameras

To paraphrase a well known television program, American Bank could have signs posted announcing to would-be hold-up artists - "Smile, you're on Photoguard cameras." The first system of its kind in this area, the Photoguard surveillance system is more than just a camera by remote control.

Several motion picture cameras are positioned throughout the bank to record the activities of suspects in detail and in motion. Not only do the films record the criminal's face, but his manner of walking and other important characteristics.

Electric actuators may be activated in a variety of secret ways by bank personnel without detection by the holdup man. Through use of ultra fast 16 mm film, a permanent record is achieved and can be run through motion picture projectors or made into still photos. Within a few hours after a crime the film can be viewed by law enforcement agencies and identifying facts broadcast on television and printed in newspapers.

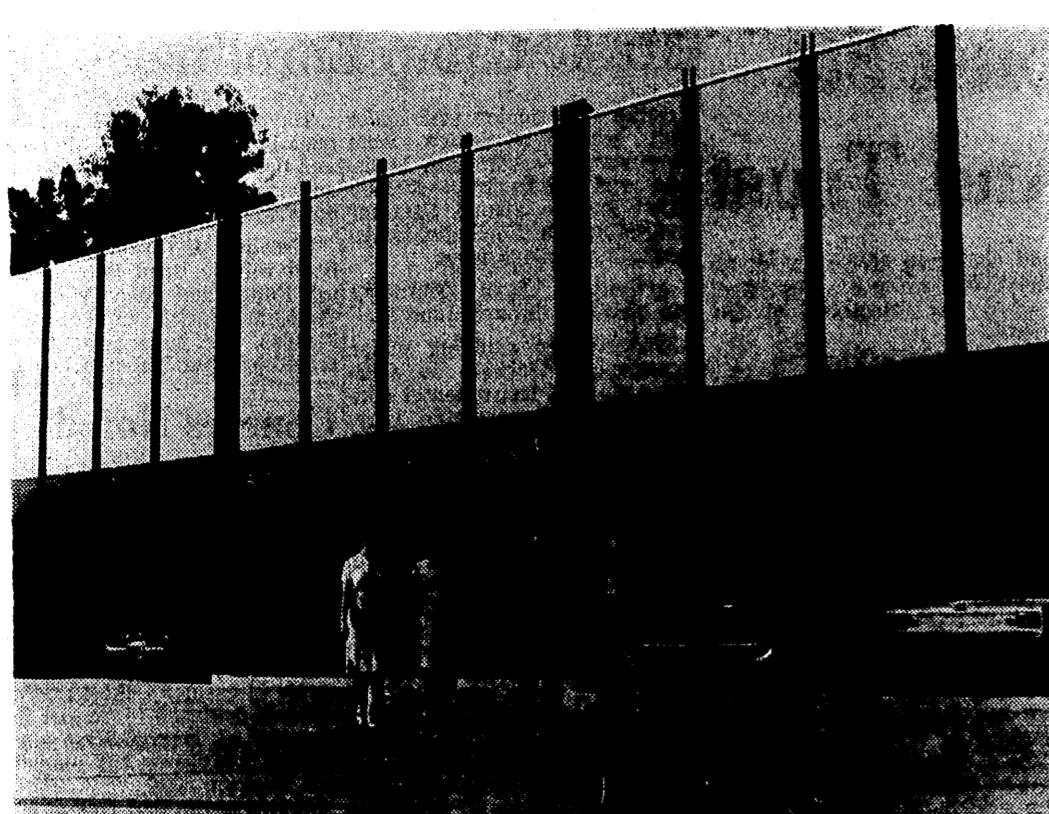

The bank boldly displays the revelation that "These premises under constant photo surveillance."

Crime Prevention Chairman Named

Lawrence E. Higgins of Baton Rouge has been chosen as chairman of a national group of 200 leading experts on crime prevention, according to Judge Chris Barnette, chairman of the Louisiana Youth Commission.

Higgins is presently executive secretary of the youth commission. He will serve as chairman of the Professional Council for a two-year term. The Professional Council is a branch of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

The Professional Council is comprised of leading experts in the United States who are concerned with the entire field of crime prevention.

Mrs. Leila Ryan Pittman, and Mrs. Betty Russell. Mrs. Pittman and Mrs. Russell were members of the original staff of seven. Now the bank has 24 employees. In the background can be seen the bank's covered parking area.

Far Reaching Decree

Pope Expands Bishop Powers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI in a far-reaching decree detailed Friday a vast expansion of the administrative powers of bishops of the Roman Catholic Church throughout the world.

The Pope reserved for himself alone the right to make changes on a limited number of questions concerning marriage, celibacy and the lives of priests and nuns.

Other activities are a clothing construction class (already completed), a tailoring course, a tailoring course for beginners (already completed) and a leadership training conference.

The leadership training conference for officers and committees of the Future Homemakers of America, Neville Chapter, will be conducted from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday in the Home Economics Department at Neville.

Activities include home visits by Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, instructor in Home Economics.

The decree gives the go-ahead to the bishops to make exceptions to general laws of the Church without referring such questions to the Vatican.

The Pope reserved for himself alone the right to make changes on a limited number of questions concerning marriage, celibacy and the lives of priests and nuns.

But by keeping the number of such reservations small, the Pope left to the bishops a broad area of administrative power they may exercise in their dioceses without Vatican control.

The decree, effective Aug. 15, implements a key section of the Vatican Ecumenical Council's document on the pastoral duties of bishops. The document provides for an historic enlargement of bishops powers in Church affairs.

The section recognizes the rights of bishops to make exceptions to general Church laws wherever needed for the good of their communicants "unless the supreme authority of the Church makes express reservations."

Pope Paul listed only 20 reservations. Vatican spokesmen said that in view of the many general laws in existence, the 20 reservations expressed by the Pope meant a great expansion of power for the bishops.

The Church's general laws are regulations that have grown up over the centuries. They do not involve basic questions of morals and faith.

In the decree, the Pope authorized local bishops in exceptional cases to permit the marriage of boys as young as 15 and girls as young as 13. This is a reduction of one year from the present exceptional ages of 16 for boys or 14 for girls. The Pope kept for himself the right to make any greater changes.

On celibacy, Pope Paul decreed that he alone could decide whether to lift the rule for priests or deacons who renounce their vocation. He gave bishops the right to decide individual cases involving subdeacons.

Both deacons and subdeacons take vows, but deacons are farther along the road to priesthood.

Pope Paul reserved for himself whether to allow priests to practice professions such as medicine, hold public office or work in commercial endeavors.

He gave to bishops the right to permit changes in garments and the external way of life of nuns and members of religious orders. But he kept for himself the power to alter their vows and internal regulations.

He also kept for himself the right to make most exceptions to the general law that priests cannot be ordained before the age of 24. He said bishops could make exceptions of one year, but he had to rule on any greater exception.

Similarly, he reserved the right to approve marriages between relatives closer than second cousins.

His decree came just six days after he postponed the effective dates of five Ecumenical Council documents, including the one on bishops.

They had all been scheduled to become operative June 29, but the Pope said that, on the advice of postcouncil commissions, he had decided they would be introduced more gradually into the life of the Church.

The decree was the first of a series that will be issued over an extended period until all sections of the pending documents have been implemented.

Other council documents, such as the decree on liturgical reform, already have gone into effect.

American Bank Has New Type Vault And Door

You can operate it with a push of a button but it can be stopped by the hand of a child. That and the fact it weighs 16,000 pounds and has a flat sill entrance are perhaps the most significant points about the vault door in the new American Bank building.

The local bank was the first in Louisiana to get this totally new type vault and door. Its design features the first true flat sill construction which enables bank customers to enter on a truly level walkway into the vault. The sill rises to meet the bottom of the door when it is closed.

This type construction provides a 360 degree seal against moisture and flood. With all its utility and massive strength, emphasized by the heavy cylindrical hinges, its clean lines, symmetrical proportions, smooth surfaces and uncluttered simplicity provide classic beauty which blends perfectly with the bank's interior architecture.

Girl Scout Camps Open On Monday

Three Brownie Camps for Girl Scouts in the Twin Cities area will begin Monday, officials at the Girl Scout office, 1106 A Stubbs Avenue, said Friday.

Camps will be at Garnier Park for Northside and Southside areas; at Pine Wood for college, Sterlington and Farmerville neighborhoods, and Chennier Lake, Area 1, for West Monroe.

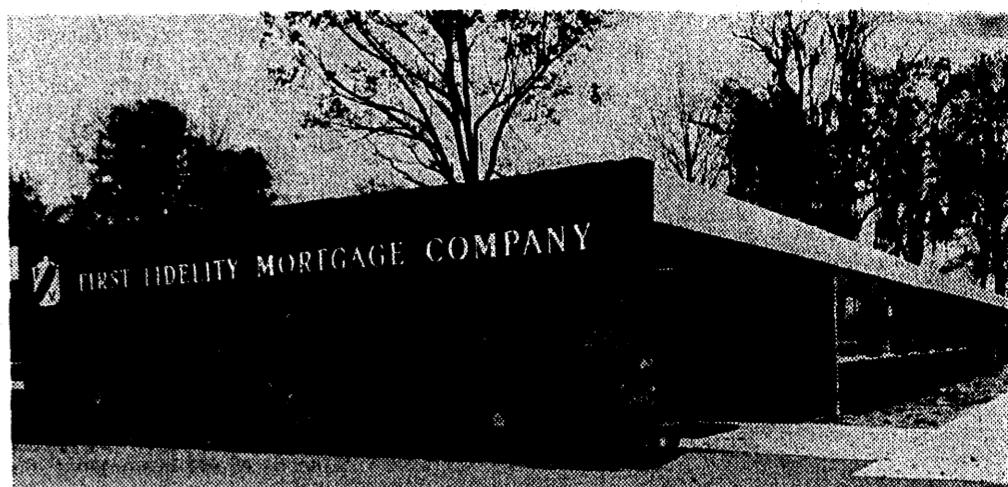

Directors will be Mrs. Harold Fike, Garnier Park; Mrs. Jack Bowen, Pine Wood, and Mrs. Lydia Tolbird, Chennier Lake.

Camps are staffed by volunteer personnel, with one adult to care for six campers.

In other Girl Scout activities, registrations are still being taken for Day Camp for older Girl Scouts in grades 4 through 9. Girl Scouts in the Twin Cities area will again go to Day Camp at Pine Wood. Deadline for registration is Friday, July 1. Registration is limited to 150 girls. Buses will furnish transportation.

Day Camp director for the Silver Waters Council is Mrs. Norman Huckabee.

Bank Has Photoguard Cameras

To paraphrase a well known television program, American Bank could have signs posted announcing to would-be holdup artists - "Smile, you're on Photoguard cameras." The first system of its kind in this area, the Photoguard surveillance system is more than just a camera by remote control.

Several motion picture cameras are positioned throughout the bank to record the activities of suspects in detail and in motion. Not only do the films record the criminal's face, but his manner of walking and other important characteristics.

Electric actuators may be activated in a variety of secret ways by bank personnel without detection by the holdup man. Through use of ultra fast 16 mm film, a permanent record is achieved and can be run through motion picture projectors or made into still photos. Within a few hours after a crime the film can be viewed by law enforcement agencies and identifying facts broadcast on television and printed in newspapers.

Crime Prevention Chairman Named

Lawrence E. Higgins of Baton Rouge has been chosen as chairman of a national group of 200 leading experts on crime prevention, according to Judge Chris Barnette, chairman of the Louisiana Youth Commission.

Higgins is presently executive secretary of the youth commission. He will serve as chairman of the Professional Council for a two-year term. The Professional Council is a branch of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

The Professional Council is comprised of leading experts in the United States who are concerned with the entire field of crime prevention.

Christian
Saves Bill
For New Try

World Legislative Bureau
BATON ROUGE — Rep. Bill Christian, Richland, saved his bill increasing beer permit fees for another House try Friday on a motion to reconsider after the measure drew a 48-45 favorable vote. It takes 53 votes to majority - pass a bill in the House.

The Richland Parish lawmaker said he will bring the bill out again Monday.

The bill would increase wholesale sales licenses to $100, retailers, Class A to $30 and retailers, Class B, to $20. A portion of the funds would go for the hiring of additional revenue agents to enforce existing state liquor laws, Christian said.

Under legislative House rules, if a bill gains a favorable vote but fails to acquire the 53-majority, the author may change his vote and move to reconsider the measure on the next regular legislative day.

Courses Noted At School Here

The first of a series of special courses will begin July 5 at the Ouachita Valley Vocational Technical School, according to S. W. Jackson, director.

First to be offered will be a course in cashier - checker. The series is designed to "assist the economy of Monroe-West Monroe, the merchants and employees," Jackson said.
